Acknowledgement

The Researcher would like to acknowledge the guidance, support and encouragement of Dr. P. Ishwara Bhat, who is instrumental in bringing about seriousness in my pursuit towards this field of study. In the true sense of the term, I am indebted to my Guruji, Dr. P. Ishwara Bhat for his untiring efforts, to fine-tune my legal knowledge and also for inspiring me to undertake research in the field of Natural Resource Conservation Law.

I am indeed grateful to Dr. C Basavaraj, Chairman, DOS in Law, for all his academic and administrative support. I also remember the help and support of my teacher Mr. M D Krishna, Senior Lecturer, DOS in law and my esteemed friend Mr. Maruti, Lecturer, DOS in Law.

Back in the year 2000, when I started my career at the National Law School, environmental law was a new subject for me. Most of what I have learnt of environmental law is owed to the expert skills and articulate abilities of Dr. M K Ramesh, Additional Professor, National Law School. Prof. O V Nandimath, Assistant Professor, National Law School, was instrumental in providing me with the kind of opportunity which a youngster can only dream of. They provided me all the space needed in this area and also to develop the kind of material that was necessary for this research work.

The support of Prof. V S Mallar, Registrar, NLSIU and Prof. A S Nadkarni, Principal, G R Kare College of Law, Margao are exceptional. They insisted on my early completion and submission and provided the much-needed time in the college to complete this work. Prof. R V Kunkolienkar is the towering personality who increased the momentum of my work by his repeated and unhindered encouragement.

My research work has caused annoyance to many of my well-wishers, to whom I have always looked up for inspiration and guidance. Academically, Mr. Seetharam is probably the best discussant and critique; God could have given, to improve my legal intellect. He was kind enough of proofing the grammatical part of my thesis. Dr. N. Subramanya, Director, Indian Research Institute has been a friend and a philosopher. I owe him all my sincere appreciation for being there always. At CEERA, NLSIU, Ms. Pushpa and Veerendra have been the best colleagues one could ask for.

I am indeed grateful to my father-in-law Mr. N K Pai, for his generous support and encouragement all throughout this period. Lastly, but not the least I want to thank my Family, specially my Mother, Mrs. Indira Bhat, because of whom I exist on this planet and my brother Shashidhar Bhat, by whose support, I was able to stand on my feet in this competitive world.

My final preparation was possible only due to the fulltime support of my dear friend Mr. M S Manjunath. His support was crucial for meeting deadlines and also seeing me through rough days. Ms. Ashapoorna, and Mr. Kiran have always shown great support during my these four years, this is my opportunity to show my gratitude to their friendship and support.

Behind every man’s success there is a woman. My wife Aruna is academically demanding and has contributed extraordinarily towards my work.
