ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I wish to express my deep sense of gratitude first and foremost and in abundant measure to my research guide and supervisor, Dr. N. Usharani, Professor and Chairperson, Department of Studies in Communication and Journalism, University of Mysore, Mysore, who has permitted me to undertake this research study and has given me invaluable guidance and supervision through all the stages of the study with an unfailing enthusiasm and infinite patience.

I record my sincere and deep sense of gratitude to Dr. N. Usharani, for her encouragement, help and critical comments at every stage of my writings without whose support this research work would not have taken the present form. Furthermore, she guided my research with critical insights, forthright and scholarly comments and friendly concern. She gave me the freedom to develop the literary and social concerns of the thesis in the way I perceived and yet critiqued my ideas with acumen so that I could keep the focus on the literary significance of the thesis. Her attention to every detail of my thesis was meticulous. It has been a very enriching experience for me to relate myself to her as a Ph.D. research scholar. And also she has constantly encouraged me and helped me till I finished the research study. I thank her sincerely for the suggestions and constant encouragement. I shall feel honored to remain indebted to her forever, for the noble patronage she has bestowed upon me.

I wish to express my heartfelt gratitude to Rev.Fr. Leslie Moras, Principal, St. Philomena’s Degree College, Mysore, for his encouragement and support. It is because of time.
