ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The author takes this opportunity to express his sincere gratitude to his research supervisor Professor Dr. J. Raja Paul Perinbam for giving an opportunity to undertake the work of this kind and for his guidance and continued encouragement throughout the research.

It is with a profound sense of indebtedness that the author records his sincere thanks to Professor Dr. P. Subbarami Reddy for his novel ideas and guidance throughout the execution of the research work reported in this thesis.

The author thanks the Doctoral committee members Dr. S. Thiruvengadam, Dr. S. Srinivasan, Dr. Y. V. Ramana Rao for their encouragements and suggestions.

The author is grateful to Prof. A. Krishnan, the Secretary and Sri V. Thulasi Doss, the Treasurer, Sri Venkateswara Educational and Health Trust and Prof. S. Muthukkaruppan, the Principal Sri Venkateswara College of Engineering for providing a conducive atmosphere for this work at College and for sponsoring presentation of papers at various international conferences.

The author thanks the Director and authorities of Anna University, School of Electronics and communication Engineering and others not specifically mentioned who in one way or other helped in carrying out this work. The author also wishes to record his thanks to his colleagues in the Department of Electrical and Electronics Engineering Sri Venkateswara College of Engineering.

The whole hearted support by his parents Mr. M. Parthasarathy and Mrs. P. Dhanalakshmi and fore-bearance of his wife Mrs. R. Ramani and son R. Raajashekaran and daughter R. Aishwaraya Lakshmi during the research work are acknowledged.

P. RANGARAJAN