It seems to be a much cherished dream comes true. I still remember the fond memories of the days in Vallabh Vidyanagar, a place that is true to its name, a place that offers a milieu where the knowledge blossoms, where I thought to pursue a research work in the area of sales promotion that has always been the topic of my interest.

I had some idea, but, it was just an idea and there was a lot to be done. And then I met my guide, Dr. Rajnikant P. Patel. He became my mentor right from the moment of conceptualization. And then there was no looking back. I am deeply thankful to him for his guidance as well as personal encouragement that has immensely helped me to get this work completed.

It was a team work, and in addition to my guide and me, there were others without whom it would have been difficult to complete this work.

I am thankful to (Late) Dr. R.K. Prabhakar for his guidance and his kind support to allow me using the resources at G.H. Patel Institute of Business Management. My special thanks to Dr. H.J. Jani, It was he who helped me to meet my guide. I am very grateful to him for his personal and professional help during data analysis during my project work. My thanks to Prof. J. S. Panwar to give significant inputs in the research design. I am also grateful to my brethren Mr. Raju M. Rathod, of Department of Business Studies for his valuable help and support.
I also thank other faculty members and staff members of the G.H. Patel Institute of Business Management and staff members of Sardar Patel University for all their help during my work.

It would not have been possible to sail through without the help of my loving family members. The love and blessing of my Papaji and Mammiji has been a constant support. My husband needs a special mention here who has given his constructive input and involved himself in almost every aspect of my study. Their pleasure and interest in my work always kept me motivated during the project work.

At last I would like to show my gratitude to Almighty for showering me the blessings of company of above mentioned supporting experts and good health during this duration.
