Dear sir,

I am working in the field of Innovation for the degree of Ph.D. in Education under the guidance of Dr. M.T. Patel. The topic for Ph.D. work is as under:

"A Study of the Characteristics of the Innovative Educational Administrators of Gujarat State".

I want to employ Q-methodology for the study, wherein a pool of cards consisting of certain statements is used.

Herewith I am sending a list of 96 statements already grouped according to the factors they reflect. Please note that there are three major factors which run through the all the statements. COMMUNICATION, ADMINISTRATION and PERSONALITY. These major factors are mentioned in capital letters in all the groups. Under each of the major factors, there are more than one sub-factors as indicated below:
COMMUNICATION: (i) Ability
(ii) Responsiveness

ADMINISTRATION: (i) Decision making
(ii) Planning

PERSONALITY: (i) Democratic
(ii) Creative
(iii) Realistic
(iv) Loyal

Kindly go through a statement and see whether it reflects all the three sub-factors (e.g. ability, decision-making, democratic; ability, decision making, creative; ----- and so on).

May I request you to take trouble of going through 96 statements and state whether each reflects the group of three sub-factors mentioned at the top. In short you are requested to advise whether the grouping of statements is proper or otherwise.

A self-addressed stamped envelope is enclosed here-with just to facilitate your prompt reply.

Yours faithfully,

C.S. Chauhan
