Acknowledgements: I have had an opportunity of working under the able and enlightening guidance of Prof. Manubhai Shah. I have been highly benefitted from his precious probing and constructive criticism at all stages of the work. To him, I owe the deepest debt of gratitude.

It seems difficult to acknowledge individually my sincere thanks to the different workers, supervisors/foremen, union leaders and the managers, whom I met formally and informally during my research period. Most of them responded satisfactorily. It should be noted here that many of them were also eager to know about the future action to be taken in regard to their problems.

In addition, I had also met personally with Shri R. Basu, I.A.S., and Shri K.A. Sheth, the Commissioner of Labour, and the Deputy Commissioner of Labour, Gujarat State, respectively. Both of them separately spared their valuable time repeatedly to discuss LMR with me in great detail. They also permitted me to collect necessary data/statistics from official records. The concerned office staff, too, extended active co-operation to me for an access to the bulk of unpublished information and statistics lying in their records. I am grateful to them all.

I express my sincere indebtedness to the authorities of the University Grants Commission, New Delhi, for awarding me a grant of Rs.4,000/- for this study. This enabled me (a) to buy a wide range of specialised books and to subscribe to specialised magazines for the background and advanced exploration of the subject, and (b) to bear a part of the travel expenses for visits to conduct interviews with respondents in the units selected.

I am also grateful to my friends Dr. Y.S. Dave, Dr. J.L. Gupta, Dr. M.V. Bhatt, Dr. K.D. Vasava, Shri M.C. Jacob and Shri Paul Macwan for their encouragement and sustained help in various ways.

My wife Nandini has suffered from the torture of a researching husband. I do not think any words of appreciation can repay her tolerance.
