ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is a great pleasure to record the advice, cooperation and support received from a large number of individuals and institutions during the last several stages of the research, which have culminated in to this dissertation.

Dr. A. N. Sachithanandan- My thesis supervisor who has provided the inspiration for identifying and streamlining the conceptual framework. I am extremely grateful to him for the personal interest and the involvement he bestowed in bringing out this research.

Dr. A. Srivathsan- For the very formal and informal intellectual discussions on the area of research and for channeling the work in the direction. He was also my resource for a lot of information and materials on this topic.

My colleagues and other staff at the School of Architecture and Planning, Anna University who are my well- wishers and provided moral and intellectual support through out the entire work.

My students- through whose untiring efforts the documentation and study material was collected through the rural housing design studio program over the last eight years.

My family- for their endurance and encouragement over a long period of time.

My parents- to whom this is dedicated for their unfailing love and valuable support.
