REFERENCES

11. Bitzel, F (1957), 'Accident Rates in German Express Ways in Relation To Traffic Volumes and Geometric Design,' Roads and Road construction, 35(409), pp.18-20

32. Dinesh Mohan (1986), 'Road Traffic Injuries in Delhi : Technology Assessment, Agenda for Control,' International Seminar on Road Safety, Srinagar, Indian Roads Congress and Permanent International Association of Road Congress, pp. 93-1 125.
33. Dinesh Mohan (1992), 'Safety of the Vulnerable Road Users', Indian Highways, Vol.20 No.4, pp. 29-36.

34. Dondanville, L.A. (1970), 'Road Safety is no Accident', International Road Federation VI World Highway Conference, Montreal, International Road Federation.

42. Fouracre, P.R. and Jacobs, G.D. (1976), 'Comparative Accident Cost in Developing Countries', SR - 206 UC, Transport and Road Research Laboratory, Crothorne.

47. Government of Tamilnadu (1992), Policy Note on Municipal Administration and Municipal Corporations, Demand No.50.

55. Highways Research Station (1970), 'Analysis of Road Accident Statistics: Madras City 1970,' Research Record No. 44.

58. IRTDA (1989), 'Road - Crying Need of the Day', Eastern Regional Convention, Calcutta, February pp.6-12.

60. Institute of Road Transport, Madras (1990), 'Road Accidents in Madras City - 1988', Research report 114.

64. Jacobs, G.D. (1976), 'A Study of Accident Rate on Rural Roads in Developing Countries', Transport and Road Research Laboratory Report, LR 732, Crowthorne.

139. Vey, A.H. (1937), Relationship Between Daily Traffic and Accident Rates, American City, 52(9), pp.119.

140. Victor, D.J. (1979), Road User Behaviour at Pedestrian Crossings, Journal of Institution of Engineers (India), Vol 59, CI6, pp.416-419.

