ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Many must be thanked for their contribution to this research work: Dr J.P. TROY who initiated this work, the Indo-French cultural bilateral programme that made this work administratively possible, the Centre for Water Resources at Anna University and its staff, the French Institute of Pondicherry, its former Director Dr P. LEGRIS and its staff, both institutions welcomed me for this study and helped me through this research work, the IIMI and the Ford Foundation for the financial and institutional support they provided, the PWD Minor Works, particularly Deputy Chief Engineer D. GOUNDAR and Executive Engineer S. RATHINAVEL, and the PWD Groundwater wings that have provided necessary introductions and informations for data collection, the experts from Madras, EEC, World Bank, IIMI, Huntings&Gibbs that were kind enough to give me some of their time and to try to answer my questions, Dr.R. POCHAT, Director of research at ENGREF (France), J. VERDIER and D. BERTHERY from IIMI (Sri Lanka) that supervised the work and gave scientific support, the people of Kodur and Kandambakkam who have understandingly accepted this investigation, And all the others who should also have been named here. I am thankful to all of them and hope that they will not mind not being mentioned here.
But most of all I must thank Dr R. SAKTIHVADIVEL, Director of the Centre for Water Resources who guided this work and spared no energy, time or skill to make this study possible.
