Acknowledgements

At the outset my thanks are due to my guide Dr. P. S. Balasubramanian, Professor and Head of the Department of Education, who encouraged me in my first faltering steps. Without his constant support and criticism over the years, I could never have completed my research work. His subtle supervision of my thesis and his patience in reading parts and finally the whole of the draft was superb.

I am grateful to Dr. Vedanayagam who initiated me into research on seeing my academic performance.

I have relied heavily on interviews with workers, management personnel and trade union representatives of Hindusthan Teleprinters Limited (HTL), Simpson & Co. Ltd., Madras Refineries Ltd., (MRL) and Integral Coach factory (ICF), who were most helpful in answering my inquiries. I thank the Personnel Managers for having arranged the interviews. My thanks are due to all those who responded and also the officials of the office of the Commissioner of Labour, Labour Institute, Central Board for Workers
Education and the National Productivity Council for all the assistance and help provided to me.

My thanks are due to my dad, Dr M.S.Dharmaraj for his intellectual and moral support for his invaluable guidance in solving difficult problems. My thanks are also due to my mum, brothers and sisters who helped me in proof reading. It was my good luck that my husband Vivek, with understanding and encouragement provided a stimulating atmosphere that helped me through the ordeal.

Last but not the least, my thanks are due to all the staff members of the department as also my colleagues who have been helpful throughout.
