ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Taking up any research work to reach to its conclusion definitely needs the direct or indirect contribution of a number of individuals, groups and institutions who matter the most. This research work, the first of its kind on the subject, in itself is an acknowledgement to the aspirations and cooperation invested into it by many fellow journalists, colleagues, media and military experts; conscious newspaper readers, television watchers and ardent radio listeners and above all some reputed private and Government owned media institutions located in many parts of the State of Jammu and Kashmir and the rest of India.

Working on this subject was not a cake-walk, more so when the issue concerns Jammu and Kashmir and unending Indo-Pakistan conflicts since 1947. Further, Kashmir has always remained a fertile land for the entire media fraternity in planting and growing stories that suited their professional tastes. However, having an experience of working with print and electronic media, both in private and government sectors, a conscious effort was made to do justice with a subject and to arrive at a conclusion where this work could help any individual or institution in protecting the strategic interests of India on Jammu and Kashmir.

It gives me a great pleasure to thank all my seniors and colleagues, having worked with Radio Kashmir Jammu and Radio Kashmir Srinagar, in sharing their experiences gathered during the times of peace and conflicts in Jammu and Kashmir. Without their cooperation, some vital strategic issues and moments incorporated in this research work would have remained untouched.

I owe my sincere thanks to the Government of Jammu and Kashmir, Department of Archeology, Archives and Museums for permitting me to go through scores of old but highly valuable, important and relevant official files, preserved at Jammu and Srinagar. Most of those files, dating back 1925 to 1957, which had remained untouched all these years, in fact turned out to be the primary source for accomplishing this research work.

I am highly thankful to the staff in the Union Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, Prasar Bharati Secretariat, Director General All India Radio and Doordarshan, New Delhi and Sri Ranbir Singh Library, Jammu for their cooperation in providing the relevant material, copies of Government space for my number of research based articles on different issues and aspects of media in Jammu and Kashmir. Some of those articles have also been used as a reference material for this thesis.

I owe my special gratitude to Dr Gita Bamezai, Professor and Head Department of Communication and Research, Indian Institute of Mass Communication (IIMC), New Delhi and Dr Shahid Rasool, Director Media Education Research Centre, University of Kashmir, for helping and sharing their valuable experiences and also providing study material. Similar kind of help through e-mails was extended by Lt Gen (Retd) Arjun Ray, PVSM, VSM who has the distinction of having maintained a good rapport with the media in Kashmir while serving in the Valley when the militancy was at its peak there.

My sincere thanks to Padam Shree Dr Jatindra Udhampuri and former Director, Radio Kashmir Jammu, who provided me some books and reference material.

I am highly thankful to sports journalist and my friend, Sanjeev Sharma, who was in fact the first person to persuade me to undertake this research work.

At a personal level, I am indebted to my parents, wife, children and elder brother for reassuring me during all the years, when the research was in progress that I was on a good mission.

Above all, I owe a special debt of thanks to my Supervisor Dr Mohd. Monir Alam for his valuable advice, expert guidance, progressive counseling and patience in completing this thesis. I also acknowledge the help and advice I got from Prof Sangeeta Thapliyal of Jawahar Lal Nehru University, Delhi and Dr Mathew Joseph, formerly Incharge Director, Department of Strategic and Regional Studies, University of Jammu. Without their help and guidance, this research work would have remained incomplete.
