ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

For academic research, a researcher needs an understanding and supportive guide. This study would not have been possible without the pains undertaken by my guide Professor Bakkappa, Chairman & Dean, School of Business Administration, Kuvempu University, who has suggested this topic and guided me in every possible way, for which I will be ever grateful to him. My respect is due to Prof. Arun Nigavekar, Chairman UGC, New Delhi, with out his help and inspiration this research would not have been undertaken. I am grateful to Chairman and Members of the Executive Committee NAAC for providing me one year study leave for giving final touches to this research. I am grateful to Prof. V. N. Rajasekaran Pillai, former Director NAAC, Prof. V. S. Prasad, Director NAAC, for their constant cooperation, encouragement and counselling.

Prof. Sanjeevaiah, Dr. Ramachandre Gowda and Prof. Ranganath of Bangalore University. Dr. Malathi Somaiah of IIM Bangalore, Dr. S.K. Prakash, Director AMC, Bangalore, Mr. Jagirdar, British Council Library, Bangalore and Dr. A. K. Joshi, Ministry of Textiles, New Delhi Prof Nagalingappa Bapuji Institute of Management Davangere have given their practical and moral support during the design of questionnaire. Dr. Ravindra M. Pai my Brother-in-law closely associated and contributed his experience in this research and needs a special mention here. Research of this nature is time-consuming lengthy process, my wife Smt. Geetha Pujar, my cousin Channamallesha and his family who have shared my difficult times and have been great support all through. My colleagues in NAAC have extended their cooperation during every stage of the research. I acknowledge their help with gratitude and respect.

It is impossible in a research of this type to make proper acknowledgement of the multitude of sources out of which it had developed.

I am indebted to the Vice-Chancellor’s, Registrars, Officer’s, Deans, Chairman’s, members of Syndicate, Academic Council and various bodies of the Universities with in the State of Karnataka, former vice-chancellors, professors and educational experts, officers of the department of higher education, collegiate education, principals and students of different universities for actively responding to the questionnaire and providing deeper insight into the changing nature of higher education.
Interaction with participants of various seminars helped me to get their valuable suggestions. I have also drawn from vast amount of literature for this study. I owe an intellectual debt to those who have enriched this field by their literary contributions.

To conclude, I understand that this is the beginning of a much larger endeavor. The immensely rich and broad range experiences, analyses and lessons learned, which are contained in this study, can - it is hoped- nevertheless provide some insights regarding steps to be taken to make higher education sector more dynamic and vibrant.

Siddaramaiah Pujar