CONTENTS

Chapter I Introduction
- History and definition ......................................................... 1
- Symptoms of anxiety ......................................................... 2
- Normal versus abnormal anxiety ........................................... 4
- Types of anxiety disorders .................................................. 5
- Prevalence of anxiety disorders .......................................... 5
- Diagnostic features of anxiety disorders ............................... 7
- Etiology of anxiety disorders .............................................. 16
- Need and significance of research on anxiety ......................... 32
- Significance of present study ............................................. 35
- Objectives ............................................................................. 39
- Hypotheses ........................................................................... 42
- Definitions of key terms .................................................... 45

Chapter II Review of Literature
- Epidemiological studies of anxiety disorders ......................... 50
- Studies related to psychological causal factors of anxiety disorders ........................................ 55
- Studies related to co-morbidity of anxiety disorders ................ 61
- Studies related to psychological correlates of anxiety disorders .................................................. 68
- Research on anxiety in India ............................................. 86

Chapter III Method
- Research design ................................................................. 95
- Sample ............................................................................... 96
- Tools .................................................................................. 99
  - Personal Data Sheet ....................................................... 99
  - Beck Anxiety Inventory ............................................... 100
  - Beck Depression Inventory ......................................... 103
Chapter IV Result and Discussion

Section A
Socio-demographic details of the clinical group and the matched comparison group
Clinical details of anxiety patient group

Section B
Comparison of the different clinical groups

Section C
Comparison of the clinical and non-clinical groups

Section D
Comparison of the male and the female patients
Comparison of the anxiety patients belonging to different age levels
Comparison based on economic status of the anxiety patients
Comparison based on order of birth of the anxiety patients
Comparison based on educational status
Comparison based on marital status of the anxiety patient
Comparison based on family history of mental illness
Comparison based on stressful life events

Section E
Main and interaction effects of co-morbid depression, early maladaptive Schema, and dysfunctional attitude on clinical anxiety, state anxiety, and trait anxiety