ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I am deeply indebted to Dr. D. Sundaram, my research guide and supervisor. I would like to remember him more for the ideas and perspectives which he readily shared with me than for the official ritual of accepting me as a research-student. Several sittings I had with him were not only delightful and warm but also fruitful. He was a source of constant encouragement and counselling.

I am thankful to Dr. D. Palani, professor and Head of the Department of Sociology and Dr. D. Jayalakshmi, professor of Sociology for their encouragement.

I am also beholden to two former principals of Loyola College, Rev. Frs. Leo Correya S.J. and Joseph Inchakkal S.J. and the present Principal, Rev. Fr. Dr. Xavier Alphonse. S.J. for the interest evinced in the progress and completion of my research work. I am indebted to the two former Heads of the Department of Sociology of Loyola College, Prof. U. Munuswamy and Rev. Dr. M. Sebastian S.J. had helped greatly by relieving me from my teaching duty.

I would also like to thank the University Grants Commission for offering me the research fellowship and the financial assistance that goes with it. I am also indebted to the All India Association for Catholic Higher Education, New Delhi, for their monetary assistance.

My gratitude is also due to Dr. Venkata Ragotham, Department of History, Pondicherry Central University and my colleagues, Dr. Ramakrishnan and Professor Robert Bellarmine for their comments on the rough draft of the thesis.
I am thankful to Dr.A.Karuppaiah, Lecturer at the Department of Sociology and to Mr. M.S. Babji, Currently research fellow at the Department of Sociology, University of Madras for their assistance in coding and tabulating the data.

I am indebted to my respondents of Nambakkam village. I am particularly thankful to Mr.Balan and his family for the warm treatment they gave to the ad hoc member of the family I had become, not to the stranger I was. They also helped me to understand events and responses in the proper perspective and gain useful insights.

I am grateful to Dr.C.S.Rangarajan, lecturer Department of Sociology, University of Madras, Mr.K.C.Geetha Krishnan, an M.Phil student at the same department and Mr.Wilson K. Raj, my nephew for their help at the final stage of my research work.

I am thankful to the examiners for their comments and criticism on the earlier version of my thesis, which enabled me to revise and resubmit the one in hand.

My wife, Joan of Arc, deserves a lot more than a few formal words of thanks. All the same, she would want none of these from me. I thank her not for the tolerant wife she is, but for the reliable and ever-willing research assistant she has become.
