Acknowledgement

The fulfillment of this difficult and challenging aspiration could not be achieved without getting constant light, feedback, encouragement and strength from my revered Gurus, Professor Dharmanand Sharma, Professor of Philosophy, Panjab University, Chandigarh and Dr. Hirender Prasad Sah, Reader, Department of Philosophy, Panjab University. Written words often cannot take pride in doing justice to emotional expressions. The perennial transcendental source of inspiration has come from my revered Guru Prof. Dharmanand Sharma whose very name embodies the fountainhead of wisdom and an infinite glacier of the perennial river of virtue. Guruji is a repository of our classical wisdom and his intuitive mind allows the texts to speak for themselves. The whole of this thesis is nothing but an attempt to supply language to whatever light I could see by sitting at his feet. Whatever valuable here truly belongs to him and all flaws are mine, the medium. At the same time, I owe a deep debt to my esteemed guide Dr. H.P. Sah for making me capable of seeing what is simple lying here and now. His novel and penetrating insights not only challenge and deconstruct many of our fundamental concepts but also portray a simple sketch of reality that we hardly can deny without being inconsistent. I salute both of my supervisors for not being satisfied with anything less than the best out of me. At the same time I wish to appreciate the enthusiastic assistance of Mrs. Sharma for improving the overall presentation of this work. I am especially grateful to Mrs. Sharma and Mrs. Sah for their constant encouragement and consciousness raising.

I affectionately acknowledge the help and support rendered to me by all the faculty members of Department of Philosophy, Panjab University, Chandigarh. Special mention must be made of Dr. V.T. Sebastian, Chairperson of the Department for his kind support, deep empathy and constant encouragement. I am also grateful to Dr. Asha Maudgil for her kind concerns and moral boosting. I am deeply indebted to Prof. Dharmendra Goel for his eye-opener, constructive criticisms to caution me against any conceptual pitfall. I am also grateful to Prof. Rekha Jhanji,
Prof. Indu Sarin, Prof. Veena Kapoor, Prof. Geeta Menaktala, and Mr. Lallan Singh Baghel for their help and constant encouragement.

My thanks are due to a number of friends who offered at different times various sort of criticisms and suggestions. Special mention must be made of Mr. Jai Singh, Mr. Pankaj Srivastava, Sh. Rajeshji, Mr. Subhash Phogat, Mr. Sandeep Singh Dhillon, Miss kavita Chauhan, and Dr. Kuldeep Dhiman. The list is incomplete.

I also express my gratitude to the entire library staff of Panjab University and the Dept. of Philosophy for their cordial behavior and kind support. I also thank the administrative staff of my Department esp. Mr. Deepak for his timely help and co-operation.

And finally, one of my most significant debts is to my family who constantly stand behind me unconditionally in all times. Without any iota of exaggeration, I can fairly say that such a demanding work could not be produced without their unconditional emotional support, unbounded patience, and deep understanding. I salute my younger brother Major Sandeep Sharma for his boundless love and affection and much needed motivation. My heart is filled with gratitude and respect for my parents not just for their sheer encouragement and financial support despite financial constraints but also for the enormous sense of restraint, patience and sacrifice which they have shown during the different stages of my research work.

In short, this work is not the product of any individual being rather it is in a very real sense a cooperative volume.
