Acknowledgements

I thank all those people who have contributed to this study in different ways. I started work on this study while in the Regional Institute of English, which gave me the theory and training for it and completed it in Govt College, Sec 11, Chandigarh, which provided me the arena of the research. BA II English Compulsory course of the Panjab University is the target group of my study and my constant interaction with the group in this College in the capacity of their teacher was immensely useful.

My thanks are due to the Late DD Jyoti, the former Director of the Regional Institute of English, Chandigarh, also my Co-Supervisor. His insights in the subject of my research gave a definite sense of direction to my research.

I wish to express my special gratitude to my Supervisor, Prof Pushpinder Syal, Dept of English, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for guiding my research-work. But for the patience shown by her and the encouragement given all along, my ideas could not have developed into concrete facts and findings. I am especially indebted to my husband, Anil, for taking keen interest in my subject during numerous discussions, which helped me thresh out my ideas.

The study involved a major survey. I am indebted to my friends and colleagues in the Regional Institute of English, Chandigarh, Central Institute of English and Foreign Languages, Lucknow, The Tribune, The Indian Express, the Dept of English, Panjab University, Govt College, Sec 11 and Govt College for Girls, Sec 11, Chandigarh for sparing their precious time and providing me with useful information. My thanks are also due to the Library in charge at CIEFL, Hyderabad and School of Linguistics and Applied
Language Studies, the University of Reading, Reading, UK, for extending their facilities to me to conduct research work.

I am grateful to Alan Tonkyn and Paul Kerswil of the University of Reading, Reading, UK, for providing different perspectives in the survey conducted. My thanks are due to Bindu Bajwa and Rajneesh Arora with whom I had some focused interactions. I would like to thank all those friends who during social tete-a-tetes, perhaps unwittingly, provided me with some interesting insights into related issues.

My acknowledgements will not be complete if I do not show my gratitude to my daughters, Suruchi and Divya, for enduring patiently my busy hours at home, as the work progressed. And I must thank Sukhbahal Singh for carrying out the laborious task of typing this thesis.

Sharda Kaushik
