ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am truly honoured to express my deepest gratitude toward my dissertation supervisor Dr. Mangat Ram Aggarwal, Professor and Chairman, Deptt. of Economics, Panjab University, without whose concrete suggestions, constant encouragement, and critical evaluation of the entire manuscript, I would not have finished this study.

Thanks are due to Dr. S. Bhatnagar, Professor and Director and Dr. R. N. Soni, Professor and Head/Economics in the Directorate of Correspondence Courses, Panjab University, who endured my long absence during my study leave and provided constructive and valuable suggestions. I would like to express my appreciation for all the colleagues who willingly provided me guidance during the period of this study.

I am extremely indebted to Dr. Dharam Vir, Professor, Deptt. of Chemical Engineering and Technology, Panjab University, for his valuable guidance in Econometric Methods during the computerisation work and concrete suggestions for computer programmes used for the empirical study. I am also very grateful to Mr. R. K. Singla, Asstt. Programmer, Computer Centre, Panjab University, who assisted me and worked exhaustively for the completion of the computer work.

I take this opportunity to thank the authorities of Tata Energy Documentation and Information Centre (T.E.R.I.), Bombay and its regional office at New Delhi; Statistical Division, Petroleum Information Service, New Delhi; Indian Institute of Foreign Trade, New Delhi; Tata Institute of Social Sciences, Bombay; Panjab and Haryana Economic Statistical Organisations at Chandigarh; Central Statistical Organisation, New Delhi; Ministry of Energy Govt. of India, New Delhi, and above all to the authorities of the various libraries of Panjab, Delhi and Bombay Universities who provided me with adequate facilities for this dissertation. I must express my appreciation for all those who have done allied research studies in India and abroad, for these works gave a positive direction to this study.

I find it quite difficult in expressing a short acknowledgement for my husband who has not only been giving a continuous and constant encouragement, but also actively assisted me right from the conceptual to the completion stage. My parents morally supported me during the entire span of my study and I can never be able to fully show my appreciation towards them and my children.

Professional skill and excellent piece of typework on the part of Mrs. Darshan Kaur are also to go in for appreciation.

In the end, I am deeply indebted to late Sant Gulab Singhji and late Prof. Gurdial Mallik who was the colleague of Gurudev Rabindra Nath Tagore at Shantiniketan, for their divine inspiration to me to initiate this study and shape it in the present form.

Perminder Khanna nee Perminder Kaur