The present study is an attempt to identify the real forces behind the miracle known as Green Revolution in the state of Punjab. A number of academic attempts have been made to analyse the various facets of Green Revolution. But very little has been done to probe the real forces behind this wonderful achievement of Punjab. The environment, more specifically 'Politico-Administrative Environment' in the State during the period 1956-66 has been the point of focus in the present study. An attempt has been made to identify the role played by the politico-administrative combine to create an environment which could lead the state of Punjab to achieve phenomenal spurt in agricultural production in late sixties. In studying the phenomena academically it was feared that the study may not show streaks of subjectivity. Sentiments apart, an academic study as the present one is designed to have a cold and critical look for as far as possible an objective assessment. There is, however, never a finality about the results.

For completion of this study, I am genuinely and deeply indebted to my supervisor, Dr. I.N. Chaudhry, Professor of Political Science and Principal, Panjab University Evening College, (Retired) for his invaluable help and suggestions. I feel really fortunate in having him as my supervisor and appreciate the vision and dedication with which he planned the project and read every word of the thesis.
I am deeply indebted to Dr. M.M. Puri, Professor Emeritus of Political Science who despite his unending preoccupations guided me at all stages of my research.

I feel indebted to my colleague Dr. V.K. Mahajan, Reader in Economics, Department of Evening Studies, Panjab University for his very valuable day to day help and technical advice much needed in the writing of the thesis.

My sincere gratitude to Dr. Khem Singh Gill, Vice-Chancellor, Punjab Agricultural University, Ludhiana who not only gave invaluable suggestions concerning my research problem but also allowed me to consult the library. I must thank the library staff of the Punjab Agricultural University for the cooperation they extended to me. I will be failing in my duty if I do not acknowledge the help given by Mr. Rajinder, in-charge P.A.U. Camp Office, Chandigarh.

I must gratefully acknowledge the suggestions and encouragement given by Dr. (Mrs.) Pushpa Chaudhry, Reader in Education, Panjab University; Dr. (Mrs.) Rashmi-Sudha Puri, Reader and Chairperson, Department of Gandhian Studies; Dr. A.C. Julka, Reader in Economics; Mr. Pardeep Kumar Sharma, Lecturer in Department of Evening Studies; Professor D.R. Sharma, Chairman, Department of Evening Studies; Dr. Pradeep Kumar, Reader, Department of Political Science; Dr. M.L. Sharma, Lecturer in Gandhian Studies and Mr. Pritam Singh, I.A.S. (Retd.).
To the political leaders and administrators who were kind enough to answer my queries willingly and cheerfully during personal interviews, I express my sincere gratitude.

My special thanks to Mr. Paramjit Singh, Librarian, Department of Political Science; Library staff of Department of Evening Studies; Library staff of Panjab University Library and officers in-charge of various government departmental libraries, who gave me all the help whenever I approached them.

I am grateful to Panjab University for allowing me two years study leave for pursuing my research.

Mr. Tarun Chugh deserves my special thanks for typing the thesis.

My family members have a prominent place in the acknowledgements. My wife, especially, showed immense patience with me at home and created conditions congenial for me to complete my work.
