ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

First and foremost I pay sublime obeisance to Almighty for His presence and for giving me strength, motivation and persistence right from the thought of the study to its completion.

I wish to express my special gratitude to my supervisor Prof. M.R. Aggarwal, subject expert of International Trade, Department of Economics, Panjab University, Chandigarh, known for his intellectual pursuits, prolific writings and erudition, for his mentorship and impeccable guidance, keen interest, incessant patience, enthusiasm, warm approach, useful suggestions and sustained encouragement for the perusal of the script. His perseverance to go through every minutest detail of this work and dissemination of new ideas has been of great help. But for his scholarly guidance, systematic and encouraging attitude, examining and illuminating the issues, the study would not have come to fruition in its present form. I consider myself singularly fortunate and highly privileged for having the chance to be his student and to have worked under his supervision.

I am grateful to Chairperson, Dr. Upinder Sawhney and Ex-Chairman Dr. Naveen Sharma for providing all the assistance and help for smooth functioning of my research throughout the course of the study. My obligation extends to Mr. Harichand and all the office bearers of Economics Department for the much needed support for completing the research.

I am indebted to Shri Ved Prakash, librarian, Economics Department and to other staff members of the libraries of Panjab University, Chandigarh for their wholehearted promptness to meet my frequent requests for research material.

In assembly of the material, I owe my thanks to many institutions and individuals from whom I derived enormous support in bringing out this research. I desire to thank Exim Bank at Jawaharlal Nehru University (JNU), New Delhi; Indian Institute of Foreign Trade (IIFT), New Delhi; National Center of Applied Economic Research (NCAER), New Delhi; Research and Information System for the Non-Aligned and Other Developing Countries (RISN), New Delhi; Indian Council for Research on International Economic Relations (ICRER), New Delhi; and International Monetary Fund (IMF) Office, New Delhi. In particular I would like to thank Mrs. Sunita, librarian WORLD BANK, New Delhi and Ms Swapna Nair, United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD), for their much kindly assistance. My heartfelt thanks to Mr. Chaitanya Kaushal, Trade Officer, European Commission, New Delhi and Mr. Kailas Karthikeyan, Trade Officer, UNCTAD, New Delhi who have gone out of the way to support the study.

I am deeply beholden to my husband Kunal Yadav and my elder brother Bikram Yadav for unstinted co-operation and a constant word of cheer which proved to be a perennial source of inspiration, for which I will be indebted for life. I would like to thank my uncle Mr. Sudhir Yadav who had been one perpetual source of encouragement, unfilinching and unconditional help to me.

I acknowledge with great sense of humility and utmost reverence the contribution of my parents and my parents in-law. I am highly indebted to them for motivating and supporting me to pursue my research work, uninterruptedly and emboldening me with their blessings. My thanks are also due to my younger brothers Mrinal, Balram and Hemant for believing in me.

(Renu Yadav)
