ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am at a loss of words when I think of the great support of all those people around me who have contributed in some way or the other in giving a shape to the present thesis, which has been an outcome of continuous efforts over a period of time.

My greatest debt of gratitude goes to my reverend teacher and supervisor Dr. Rajesh Gill, Professor and Head, Department of sociology, Panjab University, Chandigarh, whose overwhelming concern and long standing patience kept me motivated to give my very best. Even in moments of deep despair and discouragement, she gave me the right words and ignited the spark of hope that kept me going. I consider myself fortunate to have worked under such an incisive scholar and penetrating thinker, who provided me the intellectual stimulation to delve deep into the issues relating to the study. But for her support, this work would not have materialized.

I would like to thank Prof. M.S Gill, Department of Sociology, Guru Nanak Dev University, Amritsar for his constant guidance and valuable suggestions at various stages of my work. I wish to thank Prof. M.K Teja and Prof. Sherry Sabarwal from Department of sociology for their timely help. I am also grateful to Dr. Edward Masih, Principal, B.U.C. College, Batala for providing necessary facilities and help to complete the thesis.

This project would not have been possible without the unstinting support of my dear friends Penny and Sukhdeep, who constantly boosted my morale and gave me valuable suggestions and guidance from time to time. My friends Raminder, Jagwinder, Mandeep, Benjamins, Ashwani, Vinita, Mridula, Manjula, Kunju, Saleena and McMullens also cheered me up throughout the period of my work. Anand and Gunreet deserve a special mention for their untiring love and forbearance. A special word of thanks goes to ‘Dadi’ for all her blessing and prayers.

I would also like to acknowledge the contribution of Harbiles and Kahlon aunty for helping me in the data collection, all the respondents for giving me necessary information and Ashok Munjal for taking time out to type all the tables.
I owe a great deal to my parents and sisters, who instilled in me a desire to remain, engaged in academic activities and uplifted me spiritually with their prayers and benedictions. I am thankful to my brother Pankaj and sister-in-law who were always ready to bear with me and were generous enough to forgive me for all my selfish academic inclinations.

Above all, I wish to thank God whose blessings have gone with me in the realization of my dream.

RAJNI BALA