ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The present study would never have seen the light of the day but for the kind cooperation and assistance I have received from several quarters. My first and foremost intellectual debt is due to my esteemed Supervisor Dr. K. Gopal Iyer, Reader, Department of Sociology, Panjab University, Chandigarh who has made my study what it is by his resourceful and critical guidance. His highly informal and veritable style of functioning, most unorthodox way of thinking, sharp and penetrating analytical point of view, flair for details and deep theoretical insights, though all these are at times more demanding, there is little doubt that any serious researcher would immensely benefit from him. Hence I wish to place on record my deep sense of gratitude and thankful acknowledgements to him for all his help and encouragement to successfully complete my study.

Next I owe a debt of gratitude to all those who were instrumental in providing me an opportunity to work under a Teacher Fellowship without which it would have been seldom possible for me to have undertaken this study. Here special mention must be made to the UGC, New Delhi, Dr. Victor S.D'Souza, former Chairman of the Department of Sociology, Panjab University and the Management of my College. I would also like to express my sincere thanks to all other members of staff, both teaching and non-teaching, of the Department of Sociology, Panjab University who in one or the other way had helped to make my stay here quite rewarding, fruitful and comfortable. Dr. S.L. Sharma, former Chairman of the Department and Prof. P.N. Pimpley, the present Chairman of the Department deserve my special thanks in this respect. Similarly several others both within and outside the University had also given their valuable time to enrich my study among whom Shri Satwant Singh Gill in the office of the Economic Advisor to the Government of Punjab, Chandigarh needs special mention.

Back home in Tamil Nadu, I am highly obliged to late Shri C. Narayanaswami Naidu, the then President of the Tamil Nadu Agriculturists' Association (TNAA) which is the main focus of the present study. He and his other colleagues at various levels from state to the grassroots level including Dr. M.R. Sivasamy, MBBS, Chairman of the State-level Agitation Committee of the TNAA and Shri N.S. Palaniswamy, President of Palladam Taluk Unit of the TNAA had extended their full and wholehearted cooperation and help during my long fieldwork for the study. My heartfelt and warm thanks are also due to all the respondents of my study who could spare their valuable time to furnish the detailed data needed for the study. The study also involved collection of considerable amount of data from various official sources like the Revenue Department, Cooperative Institutions, State Electricity Board and Panchayat Union offices. The faculty members of the Department of Agricultural Economics of the Tamil Nadu Agricultural University, Coimbatore also helped me a great deal by way of clarifying some of the aspects of the study as also by making available to me their useful publications. My grateful acknowledgements to all of them.

Above all, words are, indeed, inadequate to express my deep sense of gratitude and debt to my wife Mrs. Pushpam Guruswamy who had to suffer long privations and undergo painful and agonising experiences owing to my preoccupation with the study for a pretty long time. Last but not the least, I am very thankful to Shri Om Parkash for the neat and prompt typing of my study. Once again, let me warmly thank all my colleagues, friends and relatives who had helped me to make my mission a success.

Chandigarh,

GURUSWAMY
