ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

On completion of one of the greatest tasks of my life, I find myself inadequate to express my gratitude to the people who helped me.

I begin, by thanking my guide, Prof Meena Sehgal, Chairperson, Department of Psychology, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for providing direction from formulating this study to its proper execution and finally in analyzing its outcome. At each stage she improved and perfected my research and communication skills like a professional expert that she is. Professor Sehgal supervised this research like a hard task master and understanding of human being and shaping me and this work althrough. I am grateful to her for nurturing and enriching me through this entire journey of learning and maturing.

I express my hearty gratefulness to Prof Jitendra Mohan, Emeritus, U.G.C Fellow Psychology, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for his unconditional support always.

I thank Prof B.S. Chavan, Chairperson, Department of Psychiatry, GMCH-32, for helping me overcome all my administrative hassles for collecting my data from the hospital. I also thank Prof Ashok Janmeja, Chairperson Department of Chest and TB, GMCH-32, Dr. Thami, Chairperson, Department of Dermatology, GMCH-32, Prof Atul Sachdeva, Chairperson, Department of Medicine, GMCH-32, for helping with my data collection from their OPDs. Dr. Suresh, Chairperson, Department of Statistics, Panjab University has been the light that has dispelled the near darkness with regard to advanced statistics in my mind, deserves a special thanks for helping me with the advanced statistics and their application.
Coping with this Herculean task would have been almost impossible but for support that I have received from Meenu, Shalini, Harinder and Harpreet.

I have been fortunate to belong to two very supportive and encouraging families. I will admit that my mother-in-law and my mother were instrumental in making me realize this milestone. Having said that how can I miss to thank my father-in-law and father who willingly parted with their spouses for this noble cause till I reached my destination.

My brother Rocky, who always made me laugh when ever I was low. I invariably turned to him to pep me up.

My husband Krishna for his endless support in making me achieve this ambition of my life. I just can not find words to thank him for his priceless contribution.

The most delicate contribution was made by my sun shine, one and half year old daughter Kaaira, who took away all my blues with her every smile and every mischief. She has been the strongest drive in achieving this milestone.
