ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

While presenting my doctoral thesis for the scrutiny by the learned experts, I remain acutely conscious of the great debt I owe to all those who have helped me in this project. I fully realize that but for the help and inspiration received from a number of persons, this task would never have been fulfilled. First and foremost among such luminaries is my esteemed supervisor Dr Victor S. D'Souza, Professor, Department of Sociology, Panjab University, Chandigarh, who has been a constant fount of inspiration from the inception to the final stage of submission of this dissertation. His scholarship, courtesy and humanity have made my task a joy. Besides this, Professor D'Souza also helped me in getting the teacher fellowship. I am extremely grateful to him.

I am also thankful to Professor S.L. Sharma, Chairman of the Department of Sociology, Panjab University, Chandigarh for his insightful suggestions on the earlier drafts of the dissertation.

My sense of gratitude is also due to my teachers Dr Yogendra Singh, Professor of Sociology, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi and Dr K.N. Sharma, Visiting Professor of Indian Studies, Department of Sociology, The University of the West Indies, Trinidad for their unstinted help and encouragement given to me whenever they visited the Department of Sociology, Panjab University, Chandigarh.
I am sincerely grateful to Dr K.L. Sharma, Reader in the Department of Sociology, Panjab University, Chandigarh who has all along been helpful to me and found time to go through the manuscript and made valuable suggestions. Thanks are also due to Mr P.N. Pimley, Reader in the Department and Dr (Mrs) Sarita Kamra who helped me in solving several statistical problems.

I should also like to acknowledge with thanks the help rendered to me by Dr Jagdish Saran Sharma, Professor and Librarian, Panjab University, Chandigarh through providing library facilities to complete this work. Office incharge Mr O.P. Johar and his colleague Mr Mohinder Pertap Guru deserve special thanks for making my stay in Chandigarh comfortable.

I am also grateful to my Principal Mrs B. Kohli, colleagues and friends, Prof D. Mishra, Prof Raghuwar Dayal, Prof Mohan Shrotriya, Prof Arun Chaturvedi and Prof S.L. Jain at Government Arts College Alwar, who were readily available to me for help.

Mr Surendra Nischal, Mr P.S. Rawat, and Mr S.L. Somani Teacher Fellows in the Department of Sociology, deserve special thanks for their help. I am also thankful to my neighbour friend Mr K.S. Gill, Research Scholar in Political Science for making my stay comfortable and full of joy in the hostel.
I am grateful to the University Grants Commission for providing Teacher Fellowship, and to the Government of Rajasthan (Directorate of Education) for allowing me to complete this work.

I shall be failing in my duty, if I do not acknowledge my thankfulness to my respondents who have been a source of knowledge for this study.

I have no words to express my deep sense of gratitude and appreciation for my senior colleague and family friend Late Professor J.P. Sharma, Head of the Department of Sociology, Government Arts College, Alwar who was the only source of inspiration for my higher learning.

Last but not the least, I would like to express my gratitude to my wife Vimal and children, Naveen, Nidhi and Nikhil, who most willingly and cheerfully bore long periods of my absence from home and always inspired and encouraged me to work hard for the completion of this work.
