ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

“By appreciation”, Voltaire is famously said to have remarked, “we make excellence in others our own property.” And though my aim here is only to appreciate the help and assistance I have received from many different and varied sources during the course of my research for this dissertation, and during the actual composition of the dissertation as well, yet it is needless to say that a major part of this thesis owes its origin to the excellence I have been fortunate enough to glimpse, and admire, in a number of people I have come in touch with over the last few years. This acknowledgement is only a small way to express my continuing respect for all of them and a justified measure to remind myself of how much I have learnt from them all.

First of all, I would like to convey my gratitude to Professor Dipankar Purkayastha for the patient support he has so kindly extended to me over the last few years. Without his critical insight, and constant supervision, it would have been doubly difficult for me to have concluded this research project. I would also like to take this opportunity to thank other senior researchers and writers, namely Prof. N. Scott Momaday, Prof. Simon J. Ortiz of Arizona State University, Prof. Judith Butler of the University of California at Berkeley, Prof. Nandana Dutta of Gauhati University, Prof. Alladi Uma of Hyderabad Central University, Prof. Ananda Lal of Jadavpur University, the late Prof. C. Vijayashree of Osmania University Centre for International Programmes, Prof. Sajal Nag of Assam University, Dr. Pramod K. Nayar of Hyderabad Central University, Swami Gitatmananda (earlier of RMIC, Golpark), Prof. Tapodhir Bhattacharjee of Assam University and Mr. Siddhartha Deb of the New School, New York, whose direct advice, help and support through brief or extended correspondences, or, in some of these cases, whose continued friendship, have aided me throughout the duration of this research project. I am also thankful to Prof. Momaday for graciously allowing me to use a selection of graphics from his book The Journey of Tai-me and The Way to Rainy Mountain in this dissertation.

I am grateful to the staff and officials at RMIC Library, Golpark, Kolkata, the American Information Resource Center at Kolkata, the Memory at War Project, Department of Slavonic Studies, University of Cambridge, the Institute of Modern Languages Research, University of London School of Advanced Study, the English and Foreign Languages University library and the OUCIP library at Osmania University for the help and support they have given me during my research and/or stay at these places, or my interaction with them for secondary research material.

A number of personal friends and relatives whose support has been of great value to me during moments of self-doubt and crisis merit a small mention here - Maulana Mahmudul Hasan, Mrs. Ira Roy Chowdhury, Mr. Shubhashish Roy Chowdhury, Mrs. Indrani Das, Mr. Shoubhonik Deb,
Ms. Sudipta Paul, Mr. Ishan Shukla, Mr. Deborshi Brahmachari, Mrs. Sarabjit Jaggi, Mrs. Asmita Boral Choudhury, and Dr. Jayita Sengupta.

Last, but foremost nonetheless, I would like to acknowledge the constant attention and care that my mother, Mrs. Swarnali Choudhuri, has provided me with ever since I started as a graduate student of the English department at Assam University’s Silchar campus. Without her continuous support of every possible kind this dissertation would not have seen the light of the day. Though I am grateful to her for a lot of other blessings she has borne into my life, yet saying thanks for this dissertation seems to be the right thing to do.
