

Acknowledgement

I cordially thank one and all for their kind support for helping me achieve the greatest academic goal of my life. First of all I would like to sincerely thank God who gave me the opportunity and destiny of achieving this great goal.

I would like to thank my research guide Dr. Yogesh T. Jasrai, Professor and voluntarily retired Head, Department of Botany, Gujarat University, Ahmedabad, without whose support and guidance I would not have been able to fulfill my wish of doing a very innovative research work in my Ph.D.

I also sincerely thank Dr. Archana Mankad, Dr. Hitesh Solanki and Dr. Himanshu Pandya for their valuable suggestions, guidance and encouragement from time to time, boosting our moral for a better research work in Ph.D.

I also acknowledge my sincere thanks to Dr. R. Ramesh, Geosciences Division, PRL, Ahmedabad for his support and guidance on Tree Ring Analysis.

I sincerely thank DST, India for their financial support in the form of INSPIRE Fellowship and the honour they gave to me by designating me as an INSPIRE Fellow equivalent to JRF.

I acknowledge my sincere thanks to Rashmi, my seniors and my colleagues for their sincere help, support and encouragement.

I also thank the energetic student team of M.Sc. Climate Change Impacts Management - Nisha, Darshit, Dhruvi, Fenil, Alpesh, Javed and Alay without whose support and help my work would never have been complete.

I also thank the Departmental Staff for their support and help.

I would like to thank my Mother (Mrs. Sumitra Rathore) and Father (Mr. Sanjay Kumar Singh Rathore) Brother (Jaiveer Singh Rathore) without whose consent, permission, support, help and blessings my work would never have started and henceforth dedicate my thesis to them.

I would also not fail in thanking my Mother-In-Law (Mrs. Kailash Kanwar), Father-In-Law (Mr. Roop Singh Bhati) and my Husband (Mr. Anirudh Singh Bhati) without whose sincere support I would not have come to the conclusion of my Ph.D. project.
