Acknowledgements

I express my deep sense of gratitude to my teacher, and guide Professor Bhuvan Chandel, former Director, Indian Institute of Advanced Study, Shimla, for her unstinted and valuable guidance and continuous encouragement, very necessary for the accomplishment of this research work. She continues to be the most popular and highly admired teacher amongst her students till date. She has always inspired and provided ample space to her students to take interest and participate, in the various discourses of philosophy, at national and international levels. I thank her for providing me a platform, where I can nurture and explore wider horizons of life. This life is too small to return, what all she has given to me.

I am equally grateful to my supervisor Dr. V. T. Sebastian, Chairman, Department of Philosophy, for his time, constructive advice and insights. Without his cooperation, it would not have been possible for me to complete this work. I have also greatly benefited from several long discussions with him on Gandhi. He offered me a fresh perspective on the work. His efforts have helped me in becoming a better student and a sincere researcher.

I am grateful to late Professor Daya Krishna for his encouragement to take philosophy more seriously, through the discussions I had with him during seminars organized by CSC, ICPR, New Delhi and Indian Institute of Advanced Study, Shimla.

I am highly grateful to Dr. Mrs. Madhu Prashar, Principal, Dev Samaj College for Women, Ferozepur, for supporting and motivating me to complete this thesis. She has been kind enough for granting me study leave which has been fruitful in writing this thesis. Her thoughtful comments on gender did raise my concern and sensitivity towards the topic.

I thank Professor Dharmanand Sharma and Dr. H.P. Shah for their innovative suggestions and viewpoints, which have been beneficial, while writing this thesis.

I am grateful to my teachers Professor Satya Pal Gautam, Professor Rekha Jhanji, Professor Indu Sareen, Professor Veena Kapoor, Professor Geeta Manaktala, Dr. Asha Maudgil and Mr. Bikram Rana for their encouragement and support.

I am indebted to my friend Mr. Lallan Singh Baghel, Lecturer, Department of Philosophy, Panjab University for sparing his valuable time to discuss Gandhi and issues related to caste, gender and modernity in a comprehensive manner all through these years. He clarified many of Gandhi’s complex ideas and made detailed and perceptive comments on each chapter.

I thank my friend Mr. Rajesh Jaiswal, Lecturer, Department of English, Government College, Sector 11, chandigarh, for his suggestions, critical observations and illuminating thoughts on Gandhi. It was his suggestion that I took Gandhi seriously for my research work.

I am also grateful to eminent scholars Dr. Marzaban Jal and Dr. Ishwar Singh ‘Dost’ for giving insights on Marxian concepts, which has helped me a lot while writing this thesis.
I would also like to express my debts to Late. Professor Pradeep Kumar, Department of Political Science, Panjab University, Chandigarh, Dr. Ujjwal Kumar Singh, Reader, Department of Political Science, Delhi University and Dr. Anupama Roy, a Senior Fellow at the Centre for Women Development Studies (CWDS), New Delhi, for motivating me to pursue various social and political issues and concepts comprehensively.

I thank Critique: A students Discussion Forum, Panjab University, Critique Ferozepur Chapter, Philosophical Society, Dev Samaj College for Women, Ferozepur, for providing me a platform where I developed my social and political concerns and shared and shaped my thoughts.

I express my gratitude to Capt. V. C. Harrison, Mr. Parminder Singh Kaloty, Mr. Rajeev Godara, Mrs. Divya Godara, Mrs. Madhu Gautam, Mrs. Namrata, Mrs. Navpreet, and Dr. Shiwni for their innovative thoughts and suggestions from time to time.

I cannot forget my friends, Gillian, Romil Pathak, Atul Harrison, Neeraj Ghalawat, Gurjinder Singh Kaloty, Anil Thakur, Sanjeev Bansal, Dinesh, Kuldeep Singh, Shiv Sethi, Palwinder Singh, Pushpak, Sandeep, Abhishek, Yogesh, Deepa, and Navneet for their encouragement and support.

Special thanks to my students of Dev Samaj College for Women, particularly, Heena, Harsangeet, Menika, Komaljeet, Sukhpreet, Sarabjit, Amandeep, Amanpreet, Kanwaljeet, Navjeet, Prabhdeep, Kamaldeep and Ekam for their support and trust they have in me. The discussions I had with them on social and political issues continue to provide me strength to my conviction and belief to change the society.
I want to thank Mrs. Aruna Sharma, Mrs. Anju and Mr. Sandeep Gautam for typesetting of this thesis and also for their kind help all through these years. I also thank Deepak for helping me to find solutions to the computer related problems I came across while writing the thesis.

I thank Mr. Madan and Mr. Faujdar Singh of Department of Philosophy, Panjab University, Mr. Satpal Sharma, Mr. Baldev Sharma and Mr. Kuldeep Singh for their helping hand.

I am deeply grateful to my Parents Mr. Shyam Narayan Sharma, professionally an advocate and Mrs. Kanta Sharma, a teacher who dedicated thirty eight years of her life to the field of education, for their endless love and warm affection. I thank my brothers Dr. Saurabh Sharma, Research Scientist, International Institute of Nano-Technology, USA and Mr. Anuj Sharma for their love, support and help. I thank My Sisters-in-law Mrs. Kavita Sharma, who taught me the basics of philosophy and Mrs. Ishani Sharma for supporting me. I thank my sisters Dimpi, Sukhi, Shammu, Anu, Karan, Kanwal and Pumnum, for giving their observations on my thesis and taking care of me.

Finally, I acknowledge my thanks to the staff Panjab University Library, Chandigarh, Indian Institute of Advanced Study Library, Shimla, Department of Gandhian Studies Library, Panjab University, Chandigarh, Gandhi Peace Foundation, New Delhi, Indian Council of Philosophical Research (ICPR), Centre For Studies In Civilization, (CSC), New Delhi.

Panjab University,
Chandigarh
4-12-2008

(Ambuj Sharma)