Acknowledgement

The perception of the present day problems, care and concern for children, their social milieu and the welfare measures taken up by the state inspired me to take up the theme ‘Children and the State: A Study of the Colonial Punjab’ for my research work. To my mind, looking back and studying the position of children as a social group in the colonial period would add to our understanding of childhood and children in the present, in addition to a new perception and information on the social history of the period.

The work is largely based on the primary sources, such as census reports, district gazetteers, administration reports, home department proceedings/ files and legislation as detailed in the India Code and Punjab Code passed from time to time.

For the completion of this work I received support from a number of libraries and institution, such as Punjab State Archive Chandigarh and Patiala, Haryana State Archive Panchkula, Jawahar Lal Nehru Museum and Library, New Delhi. National Archive New Delhi, A.C.Joshi Library P.U. and other local libraries at Chandigarh. I am thankful to them all for enabling me to collect valuable source material for my work.

I am grateful to Indian Council of Historical Research. (I.C.H.R) for providing me financial assistance, for the completion of this work.

Dr. Reeta Grewal

My heartfelt thanks are due to my supervisor, with whose guidance my work could get a proper shape. I am thankful to the Chairperson and faculty of Department of History for their valuable suggestions and cooperation. I am thankful to all my friends and family members for their inspiration and appreciation during this research. Special thanks are due to Dr. K.C. Jain, Associate Professor D.A.V. College Chandigarh for his constant support and co-operation towards the completion of the work.

Lastly, I would like thank my children Shival and Cheryl, for their patience and understanding while I was at work, and my husband Dr. Parminder Singh Thakur for his immense co-operation throughout this time.
