Acknowledgements

I am grateful to my supervisor, Professor M. L. Raina, whose insistence on an exacting standard made every stage of this research work an intellectual challenge. I derived immense confidence from his discerning readings of my manuscript. His thoughtful insights and editorial comments have been of invaluable help.

I also owe thanks to Dr Anil K. Raina, Reader in the Department of English, for his help and willing co-operation at every stage of my work.

Thanks are also due to the British Council Library, New Delhi, which made available considerable amount of source-material. Without its Distance Membership facility, I simply would have been stranded during the course of my research.

There have been some others whose good-willed gestures, wittingly or unwittingly, facilitated my work. I am grateful to them.

I'll be unfair to myself if I don't acknowledge that 'Kindly Light' which kept the embers of hope aglow in my hours of doubt.

Above all, this thesis would not have been possible without the love and patient understanding of my parents, to whom it is dedicated.
