CONTENTS

CHAPTER 1 INTRODUCTION
1.1 Sexual Inequality 1
1.2 Discrimination against the female sex 3
   1.2.1 Discrimination at Birth - 1.2.2 Discrimination at home - 1.2.3 Discrimination at school -
   1.2.4 Discrimination at work
1.3 Women in India in the year 1981 7
1.4 Researcher’s interest in the area 12
   1.4.1 Formulation of the problem - 1.4.2 Objectives of the study - 1.4.3 Value of the study
1.5 Data base 15
   1.5.1 Source - 1.5.2 Sampling method -
   1.5.3 Variables - 1.5.4 Methodology -
   1.5.5 Data limitations
1.6 Structure of the thesis 19

CHAPTER 2 LABOUR MARKET DISCRIMINATION AGAINST WOMEN: TOWARDS A REVIEW OF THEORETICAL AND EMPIRICAL ISSUES 21
2.1 The concept of discrimination 21
2.2 Causes of discrimination in the labour market
   2.2.1 Taste - 2.2.2 Uncertainty - 2.2.3 Social customs - 2.2.4 Monopsony
2.3 Effects of discrimination 28
   2.3.1 Wage differentials as an economic effect of discrimination - 2.3.2 Segregation:
as an economic effect of discrimination
2.4 Stability of the discrimination model 32
2.5 Empirical estimation of discrimination issues

2.5.1 Empirical methodology: The decomposition approach - 2.5.2 Studies on sex discrimination using the decomposition method - 2.5.3 Limitations of the decomposition technique - 2.5.4 Alternatives to the decomposition method

CHAPTER 3 STRUCTURE OF THE SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNICAL PERSONNEL: A DESCRIPTIVE ANALYSIS

3.1 State-wise breakup

3.1.1 Sex-wise breakup of the S&T manpower, 1981

3.2 Educational characteristics of the S&T manpower, 1981

3.2.1 Distribution of S&T manpower according to the level of educational attainment and field of specialisation

3.3 Labour market structure of the S&T women

3.3.1 Distribution of S&T manpower according to activity status - 3.3.2 Distribution of S&T workforce by experience and sex - 3.3.3 Sex differentials in the salary of the S&T workforce

3.4 Conclusion

CHAPTER 4 MEASUREMENT OF LABOUR MARKET DISCRIMINATION AGAINST THE SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNICAL WOMEN PERSONNEL

4.1 The single equation method

4.2 The decomposition technique: methodology and issues

4.2.1 Methodology - 4.2.2 Interpretation of the decomposition components - 4.2.3 Decomposition with selectivity controls
4.3 Empirical data analysis

4.3.1 Specification of the earning function

4.3.2 Estimating discrimination by the single equation method

4.3.3 Separate earnings function: interpretation of the results

4.3.4 Decomposition analysis

4.3.5 Alternative earning functions and decomposition analysis

4.3.6 Sample selectivity controlled decomposition analysis

4.4 Conclusion

CHAPTER 5 OCCUPATIONAL DISTRIBUTION AND EARNING DIFFERENCES

5.1 Occupational distribution of the S&T labour force

5.2 Occupational segregation

5.2.1 Measures of occupational segregation

5.2.2 Index of occupational segregation in the S&T labour force

5.3 Occupation and earnings differences

5.3.1 Simple decomposition with occupation as additional variables

5.4 Occupational attainment and discrimination

5.4.1 The Brown, Moon and Zoloth Methodology

5.4.2 The estimation procedure

5.4.3 Multinomial Logit model of occupation choice

5.4.4 Detailed decomposition

5.4.5 Statistical differences between the occupational distributions

5.5 Conclusion
CHAPTER 6 CONCLUSION

6.1 Main findings of the study
   6.1.1 Findings of the descriptive analysis -
   6.1.2 Estimates of discrimination

6.2 Limitations of the study
6.3 Policy implications
6.4 Conclusion
