ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This research work would have been a mirage without the valuable guidance and support of my guide Dr. N. BALU, M.A., M.L., Ph.D (Law), Professor & Head, Department of Legal Studies, University of Madras. He gathered me from the dust and motivated me to do this research. The Foremost thing about him was his simplicity and treating the students as his friends which gave me freedom to do this research work without any fear or favour. The next is whenever I was in the wrong side of the thesis, he alerted me and put me back in the right track. The discussion I had with him about the topic of this research were illuminating. I was very much endowed with his critical comments on each and every chapter of this thesis. His vast and rich experience as Professor of Law and as a Research Guide and his analytical vision have stood as pillars for executing this research work. His vast knowledge of legal principles and research methods have abundantly helped me to mould this research work in its present form. He gave me all opportunities to have access to his intellectual and wise counsel at all times. To make it simple in one sentence is to say that “I am greatly and deeply indebted to him throughout my life”

I am extremely grateful to Prof Mr. Manohar M.L., Department of Legal Studies, University of Madras, for his fruitful counsel to me on the modalities of this research.

I am greatly indebted to Dr. David Ambrose M.L., Ph.D (Law), Lecturer, Department of Legal Studies, University of Madras, for his motivation which ignited my enthusiasm to plunge into this research. His fruitful advice on International and National legal principles and pragmatic suggestions were of great help to me to designing and shaping this thesis in its present state.

I greatly indebted to Mr.R. Bhaskar Raju, Joint Secretary (Law), TamilNadu Secretarial Secretariat, for kindly permitting me to refer to important legal commentaries in their library, which is one of the best legal libraries I have seen.

I should thank Dr.R.Praakash M.L., Ph.D (Law). Advocate. Supreme Court for his valuable suggestions for this research work.

I would like to place on record my sincere thanks to Dr.T.Ramasamy,M.L.,Ph.D (Law) for giving me very valuable suggestions for this research work.

I am extremely thankful to Mr.R.Krishnamurthy And Mr.Gopal Rathnam, Senior Advocates. Madras High Court, for their arrangements for me to have an access to Madras Bar Association Library and Madras High Court Advocates Association Library for my reference.

I owe a great deal of debt to Mr.S.G.Prabahkaran and Mr.G.S.Sudhakara Gupta, for their support and encouragement to do this research.

My grateful thanks go to all the Police Personnels who had spoken from their heart and the problems faced by them, which made me to suggest some reforms in this thesis.
My profound thanks go to the authorities of the National Human Rights Commission, New Delhi and State Human Rights Commission, Tamil Nadu for their valuable contribution of Books and Reports which was very useful for this thesis.

My special thanks go to Mr. P. Krisnaprabu, Mr. Parameshvaran, and Mr. Konndiah, Research Scholars, Department of Legal Studies, University of Madras, for their fruitful and Pragmatic Suggestions for this research.

I thank American Information Resource Center, Chennai, where I could refer to American legal principles relating to the research.

I also thank the authorities of British Council Library, Chennai and Connemara Library for their help in getting the material sources for this research.

My profound thanks are due to the Officers and Staffs of the Madras University Library who helped me to trace most of the requisite materials for this research. I am greatly indebted to this authorities for their sincere and affectionate service to me.

My thanks go to Mr. D. Premkumar of the Department of Legal Studies, University of Madras, for his kind help during the period of my research.
Finally, here is my chance to convey the appreciation and grateful thanks to my beloved family members who were directly and indirectly involved in the presentation of this thesis.

First and foremost, to my parents who brought me into this world and fed me with the basic education.

Secondly, my father-in-law and mother-in-law, who treated me like their son and their endurance, inspiration, motivation and suaveness helped me in all possible ways to achieve the dreams of completing this thesis. In fact my father in law took the pain of sending me the paper cuttings of any kind of news about the Human Rights in News Papers, Magazines and journals. Which helped me quote the same in the research work. His contribution to my thesis is exemplary.

Thirdly, to my wife Dr. Radhika, who took care of entire family into her shoulders and shared my thesis work by helping me in proofread and typescript. To be simple and in one line is to say “She deserves it”

I am grateful to ADYAR STUDENTS XEROX, Thiruvanmiyur Branch, for having neatly typed my manuscripts and shaped the work in a book-form with tidy and attractive execution.

And finally to any person whom I have overlooked or could not get in touch with, my sincere apologies and my very warm regards.
