I thank with the deepest sense of gratitude Dr.V.Saraswathi, my research supervisor for her guidance and support. She was the epitome of patience, the source of my inspiration, and an ungrudging supporter of all my efforts. I am indebted to her forever.

Dr.C.T.Indra, Head, Department of English, University of Madras, has always been a source of understanding and encouragement. I am extremely thankful for her support to all my endeavours during my tenure at the Department of English.

Leading stalwarts in the fields of textbook writing and publishing contributed their valuable time and insights by breathing life into the body of the thesis. I wish to convey my deepest gratitude to all of them: Prof.A.E.Subramaniam, Dr.N.S.Prabhu, Dr.M.L. Tickoo, Prof.V.Sasikumar, Prof.K.R.Narayanaswamy, Prof.K.Venkatakrishnan, Prof.T.Sriraman, Dr.Geetha Nagaraj, Ms.Usha Aroor, Mr.Krishnadev Rao, Dr.Vani Vasudev, Dr.Deepa Chattopadhyay, Dr. Malathy Krishna, Mr.G.Olivannan and Mr.J. Lakshmi Narayanan.

I also wish to express my sincere appreciation to: Mr. K.S. Padmanabhan of East West Books, Chennai, for lending and gifting me some priceless books on publishing, Dr. Mohan Raj, Prof. Rajeevan of CIEFL Hyderabad and Dr. Helen Christiansen for their valuable insights.

I thank the Central Institute of English and Foreign Languages, Hyderabad and the Regional Institute of English, Bangalore for permitting me to use their library resources; the clerical staff of the Department of English, University of Madras for their co-operation and help; Mr. R. Elumalai for painstaking and meticulous DTP work; and lastly, I am extremely indebted to my family and friends, especially Mr. V.N. Venkitakrishnan who kept my morale high with several brainstorming sessions.