ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

An attempt towards doing research in a relatively unexplored area was challenging to the core. This study grew out of the best lessons imparted by my teachers that economics is not devoid of ethics. I place on record my sincere gratitude to all who have contributed towards the completion of the work.

I am deeply indebted to my guide Dr. Varghese M. Mathunny who gave me full freedom to expand my thoughts without losing the focus. His perpetual enthusiasm and helpful suggestions steered me to proper directions. Gratitude to my guide has no bounds.

The core idea of this work originated in the course of discussions with Dr. M. Kunhaman, my former teacher at the Department of Economics, University of Kerala.

In the initial stages of my research, the encouraging words of Dr. Manimay Sengupta, a Visiting professor at the Jawaharlal Nehru University, provided an Intellectual stimulation. Additional inputs came in from Dr. D. Narayana, the faculty of the Centre for Development Studies, who spared his valuable time to discuss the issues related to measurement of human development.

I am immensely grateful to the simple marine fisher folk of Kollengode and Paruthiyoor without whose cooperation, this study would not have materialized. All through the field work I was in an uncomparable comfort zone nourished by the warmth and innocence of the natives. The experienced ward member of Paruthiyoor, Shri. Vavveenju, took my study to amazing levels of practical insights, usually alien to official records and statements. Jisha and Suja, who assisted me in my visits to the sample households, were more like two younger sisters to me. The list goes on. But their non-exclusion in this page does not in any way downgrade my heartfelt gratitude to them.

Sincere thanks to all the officials of the Kulathoor Panchayt, the two churches, the Neighbourhood Groups, the Anganwadies, the Fishermen Welfare Board and the Directorate of Fisheries who provided valuable information.

Heartfelt thanks to my teacher Dr. Beena Nayar for her valuable suggestions. Dr. V.T. Beena, Associate Professor of the Department of Statistics, Government College For Women, was always ready to clear my doubts on the statistical part of the analysis. My friends Mr. Benoy John and Mrs. Najma helped me immeasurably at various stages of the research. Sincere thanks to Dr. Sudheesh Kaippachery for his full support.

I acknowledge the University Grants Commission for granting me the Teacher Fellowship under the Faculty Improvement Programme. This study received the full support of the Kerala University Library and Research Centre. The assistance provided by the library staff of the Centre for Development Studies, and the Institute of Management in Government, Kerala deserve special mention.

The blessings of all my teachers, right from the kindergarten to the postgraduate level, have always been encouraging me to fight one more round, without loosing human values. Respectful gratitude to Dr. K. Ramachandran Nair, Dr. S. Uma Devi, Dr. G. Karunakaran Pillai and Dr. M.K. Saralamma, my former teachers at the Department of Economics, University of Kerala.

Government College for Women has always been a second home for me. I owe a lot to my colleagues in the Department of Economics of this college, who have been strengthening my determination to take this work to a successful finish. The prayers of all my dear students for me can never go unacknowledged. They are the primary motivators in any academic endeavour.

A special word of thanks to Prof. Sosakutty Varghese for her motherly affection that imparted strength to face tough situations in the course of this study. All my friends at the Kerala Legislature Secretariat have always walked beside me, with love and care. Timely help from Vava Gopinath is sincerely acknowledged.

My family has been my strength. The lap of my parents has always been the best academy for me. My parents taught me the first lessons on the coexistence between rights and duties. My husband has been so much a part of my life and its goals that I fail to distinguish between him and me. Words fail me to express my gratitude to them.

The entire course of the thesis progressed with the blessings of God Almighty, manifested through the positive energy that I received both in academic and personal spheres. Before Him I bow my head.

Thiruvananthapuram

UMAJYOTHI. V