METHOD OF CITATION

Since the collected works of Thomas Hardy and Robert Frost are frequently quoted, I have identified them in an initial foot-note, have indicated the abbreviation to be used, and thereafter limited the references to particular poems, lines and page number as appearing in the complete works. In cases where a single book or an edition is cited frequently in a chapter, after the first citation only page numbers or volume and page numbers are given. The names of poems are given within double quotation marks. And the quotations appear with single quotation marks.
