ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

With a deep sense of gratitude I acknowledge the invaluable help, necessary guidance and encouragement extended to me throughout the dissertation work by my supervisor and guide Dr. P. Kamaiah.

I am grateful to Prof. A. Ramakrishna Rao, Department of English, for his scholarly advice. I heartily thank Dr. C.R. Visweswara Rao, Reader, Department of English, for his valuable advices along with helpful suggestions, eventhough he was engaged in his busy schedule. I am highly indebted to Dr. V.V.N. Rajendra Prasad, Reader, Department of English, for the inestimable help in giving me necessary suggestions as and when required.

But for their generous help mentioned above, I would not have completed my work so easily. Their timely help will be enshrined in my memory for ever.

I thank all the library staff for their ready help in getting me the necessary texts and journals. I fail in my duty if I will not thank sincerely Sri A.H. Sreenath for typing with so much speed enabling me to submit the dissertation in time.
Finally I thank my mother and brother Adisesha Reddy, who encouraged me to do M.Phil.

K.V. Lakshminarasamme
(K.V. Lakshminarasamme)
Milton says 'a good book is the precious life-blood of a master spirit'.

The aim of bibliography is ..... "to assist an enquirer in discovering the existence or determining the identity of books or other documentary material which may be of interest to him".

Lewin, R.A.M.

"An annotation is a descriptive extension of the title-page of a book, in which the qualifications of the author and the scope, purpose and place of the books are indicated and they are apt to be used as a vehicle for displaying their dexterity and skill, to say nothing of their personal views. When the content typical of annotations is sacrificed, 'drought' has begun its work upon the bibliographical garden. The annotation and its cousin the abstract, are old, still-to-be-trusted-guides."

Sayers & Stoppard, Tom