CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGMENT
LIST OF TABLES

CHAPTER – I : INTRODUCTION 1 - 21

• Introduction
• Forest policies and participatory management
• Evaluation of new forest policy
• Participatory forest background
• Population pressure and forest scenario
• Scope of the study
• Aim and objectives of the study
• Sampling
• Limitations of the study

CHAPTER – II : JOINT FOREST MANAGEMENT 22 - 40

• Joint Forest Management in India
• Earlier experiences in Joint Forest Management
• Joint Forest Management in Andhra Pradesh
• Joint Forest Management in Anantapur district.

CHAPTER – III : SOCIO-ECONOMIC CONDITIONS OF SAMPLE VILLAGE 41 - 54

• Location
• Demographic profile of sample village
• Age composition
• Marital status
• Educational profile of Naginayanicheruvu Thanda
• Occupation distribution of Naginayanicheruvu Thanda
• Social condition in the village
• Economic situation
• Housing situation in Naginayanicheruvu Thanda
• Land distribution in Naginayanicheruvu Thanda
• Agricultural accessories possessed in Naginayanicheruvu Thanda
• Livestock situation in Naginayanicheruvu Thanda
• Cropping pattern and productivity in Naginayanicheruvu Thanda
• Income and distribution in Naginayanicheruvu Thanda
• Overall social situation

CHAPTER – IV: MULTI-DIMENSIONAL IMPACT OF JFM ACTIVITY
ON THE SAMPLE VILLAGE 55 - 70

• General
• Protection of forests
• Support activities undertaken
• Impact of the JFM programme
• Growth in wildlife
• Impact on income and employment generation
• Impact on social development
• Reduction in the dependency on forest
• Involvement of the community in decision making
• Sustainability of the VSS
• Financial details of the Naginayanicheruvu Thanda VSS from 94 to 2004
• Impact on vegetation
• Impact on protection practices
• General participation
• Record of plant growth in the VSS area and their scientific, local names
• Natural regeneration and plant growth
• Impact of VSS on socio-economic conditions
• Administrative of VSS

CHAPTER – V: CONCLUSION 71 - 76
REFERENCES i - iii
APPENDIX – I
APPENDIX – II