ACKNOWLEDGMENT

To prepare the thesis Dr. N. Vasmal, Reader & Head I, is my guide and without his continuous encouragement and guidance I could not have completed this thesis. I am very much grateful to him. I must also express my indebtedness to Prof. M.U. Vasantha Raj, who has been more than a formal guide to me. In his absence from Madras, on account of his having gone to Mysore, it did not affect the progress of my work, it is only because his concern and interest in the work remained unaltered.

No, infact, compensated for the unavoidable absence consequent to the distance between Madras and Mysore, by his increased attention on the topic of my research and by his loving personal guidance at all stages of this work. If I have gained a new and different way of looking at the issues involved in this topic of my research, it is mainly on account of his unique approach to the problems that confronted. I had many occasions to benefit from the discussions in his house at Mysore by actively participating with him.
