ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I owe a deep debt of gratitude to many distinguished individuals who extended their help, co-operation and guidance for the successful preparation and completion of this Ph.D thesis entitled “Economic and Environmental Aspects of Renewable Resources: A Case study of Fisheries.” I wish to express my sincere thanks to each and every one of These special people.

In the first place, let me express my gratitude to Dr. S.T. Sangle, my research Guide, who guided me at every stage of this research work and enriched me with his valuable guidance and suggestions for the entire study with all its details, thus making it an exhaustive study in a hitherto unexplored area. His guidance and constant encouragement throughout the research work and the writing of this thesis motivated me to stay focused and overcome any shortcomings that arose from time to time. I am also thankful to my co-guide Dr. E.V. Muley, Former Director, Ministry of Environment and Forest, Govt. of India, New Delhi for his valuable guidance and encouragement.
I will be failing in my duty if I do not thank the Department of General Administration, Government of Maharashtra, without whose kind consent I would not have been able to pursue this study.

Similarly, I am thankful to all academic and administrative authorities of the Dr. Babasaheb Ambedkar Marathwada University, Aurangabad (M.S.) for allowing me to do this interdisciplinary research work by providing Co-guide, which is the first time in the history of university.

My sincere thanks are also due to the officials of the Department of Fisheries, Govt. of Maharashtra who provided me valuable background information for my field studies and helped resolve all technical doubts I had, from time to time.

In particular, I would like to thank. Mr. Hussaini, Assistant Commissioner of Fisheries (retd.) who provided invaluable help in my field studies as well as analytical work.

I also thank the enumerators and local helpers in various villages which I visited for the collection of data, without whose assistance the conduct of survey and collection of field data would not have been possible.

My family, friends and colleagues have been my support throughout the long duration of this research work. I express my heartfelt thanks to each and every one of these individuals, distinguished in their own chosen fields. The work would not have materialized but for the encouragement of my father, mother and brother. It was my husband, Mr. Nawin Sona, IAS who prompted me to take up this task and he remained motivating throughout the course of the work. I remain the most thankful to my most loving son Ved, who was always around to cheer me up and give my best to this work. I express my affectionate gratitude to my husband’s parents and my in-laws, without whose loving co-operation the work would never have been accomplished. My mother-in-law-in particular, herself Ph.D. degree holder, constantly inspired and helped me towards completion of this research work.

Above all, my heart goes out in profound gratitude to God Almighty, for endowing me with courage and confidence for tiding over several personal hurdles and enabling me to complete the work.

Richa Bagla (Ms.)