ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

It is a great pleasure for me to acknowledge here the contributions and help rendered by many scholars in the completion of this research work.

At the outset, I am highly grateful and indebted to Dr H G Hanumappa, Professor and Head, Agricultural Development and Rural Transformation Unit, Institute for Social and Economic Change (ISEC), Bangalore, who through his able guidance and incisive comments and suggestions, has helped me in the completion of this research study. He has been a source of constant encouragement and help right from the selection of the research topic till its completion.

I am grateful to Dr G Thimmaiah, former Director and Sri T R Sathish Chandran, Director, ISEC for providing me an opportunity to pursue my Ph D work and also for their constant encouragement. I am thankful to ISEC authorities for granting me the fellowship for pursuing the study. I also acknowledge my thanks to Drs D T Nanjegowda, S N Nanjegowda and R G Desai and their colleagues of the Department of Economics, Bangalore University, who helped me in a number of ways which facilitated the submission of my thesis to the Bangalore University.
During the course of this research, I benefited immensely by the thoughtful and useful comments and suggestions of many learned experts which helped me in moulding the thesis. For this, I am grateful to Professors V M Rao, V Rajagopalan, A Vaidyanathan, C H Hanumantha Rao, S Neelakantan, V B Athreya, M V Nadkarni, C Thangamuthu, K Narayanan Nair, Neelakantha Rath and S Giriappa. In this regard, I also express my gratitude to all the faculty members of ISEC with whom I had the opportunity of discussing and interacting at different stages of my Ph D work which has helped me to enrich my knowledge.

I am grateful to Sri Anil Agarwal, Director, Centre for Science and Environment (CSE), New Delhi, for his constant encouragement and for kindly granting me leave for completing the thesis. I also place on record my heartfelt thanks to Ms Sunitha Narain, and Professor K T Oommen of C S E, New Delhi.

I am grateful to the officials of the Directorate of Agriculture and Statistics, Ministry of Agriculture, Government of India, for permitting me to use the relevant data from the Cost of Cultivation Scheme deposited at Tamil Nadu Agricultural University (TNAU), Coimbatore. In this regard I also thank Dr S R Subramaniam who is in-charge of this Scheme for Tamil Nadu at TNAU, Coimbatore. I am grateful to him and his team who not only helped me in identifying the sample districts but also in the collection of data.

During my field visits, I received invaluable response from the sample farmers, village elders, revenue officials and agricultural scientists. I would like to express my gratitude to Mr. Mani and Mr. Nagarajan and their family members for their kind hospitality.

In the preparation of my thesis, I benefited from various libraries apart from ISEC. To mention a few, Centre for Development Studies, Trivandrum, Madras Institute of Development Studies, Madras, University of Agricultural Sciences, Bangalore, and CSE, New Delhi. I am thankful to the staff of these libraries.

My thanks are also due to all the administrative staff of ISEC who unselfishly took care of my stay during my study period at ISEC. Besides, my acknowledgments are also due to Mr. Krishna Chandran for his able assistance in analysing the data and preparing illustrations and Mr. K. S. Narayana and Mr. N. Boopathi for their painstaking efforts in typing the thesis. Mr. Lingaraju's help is acknowledged for preparing the maps.

My affectionate thanks are due to all my friends especially Shylendra, Mohanasundaram, Joseph, Itagi, Gopalappa, Sekhar, Thippaiah, Sundari, Manimekalai, Vidya, Madhushree, Selvaraj, Venkatakrishnan, Krishnappa, Parameshwarappa, Jayasheela, Benny Alexander and Asha whose help and encouragement has enabled me to complete the thesis.
Last but not the least, I am highly indebted to all my family members who not only waited patiently for the completion of my work but also encouraged me constantly despite many stresses and strains. My sincere thanks to all of them.
