ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The completion of any research work is inconceivable without the erudite guidance of a mentor. I, therefore, owe a sincerest debt of gratitude not repayable in any form to reverend Dr. Veer Singh, Mehr Chand Mahajan Professor, Department of Laws, Panjab University, Chandigarh, who in spite of his preoccupations took unfailing interest, gave encouragement, gracious assistance, wise and sound consultation both at the stage of planning and arrangement of the present research work as well as at the stage of final presentation.

My sincerest thanks are also due to Dr. R.K. Bangia, Professor and Chairman, Department of Laws, Panjab University, and Mr. M.S. Bains, Lecturer, Department of Laws, Panjab University, for having encouraged me to undertake research in the important area of Bonded Labour.

I owe much to the non-governmental organisations' office bearers and activists, judges, journalists, jurists, lawyers, academics, social workers and ILO representatives for sparing their valuable time for interviews and discussions on issues relating to bonded labour. The most important and yet inarticulate category of persons who deserve my sincere thanks is that of bonded labourers, who provided vital information, which proved of great importance for empirical study of bonded labour system in India.

To the officials and personnel of the National Labour Institute, NOIDA (UP); ILO Area Office, New Delhi; Supreme Court Library, New Delhi; Indian Institute of Public Administration, New Delhi; Indian Law Institute, New Delhi; Indian Society of International Law, New Delhi; I express gratitude for their help in placing invaluable literature at my disposal. Gratefully I acknowledge my debt to the staff of Labour Bureau Library, Chandigarh; Punjab Civil Secretariat Library, Chandigarh; Punjabi University Library, Patiala. I am thankful to the staff of Department of Laws Library and Main Library, Panjab University, Chandigarh for their commendable co-operation.

I am obliged to my reverend mother-in-law, who suffered a lot of inconvenience all these years in order that I might devote myself fully to this research. I am equally indebted to my respected father-in-law for his precious love and co-operation. Special appreciation goes to my younger brother, Shivjit Sector for his unforgettable help and precious co-operation. All credit for this research goes to my esteemed parents who blessed me and have always inspired me to build my career. My sincere thanks are due to my friends and well wishers who prompted me to carry out my academic pursuits well. Special thanks go to the typist for the great care he bestowed upon typing the script.

I must express my touchy feelings for my doting husband Mr. Virinder K. Bhalla, who greatly helped me in moments of stress and anxiety. For him and my little daughter Ashvarya I have hardly any words to express my gratitude, for I poached on the time and comforts which were exclusively their's. Last but not least, I am obliged to University Grants Commission for providing me with monetary assistance by way of Junior Research Fellowship to undertake this research.
