ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I owe a sense of gratitude to the various authors whose writings are a constant and continuous source of incentive and have been either intensively used or quoted by me in this study. No words are adequate to express my deep debt of gratitude to Prof. T.N. Kapoor, Dean Faculty of Business Management and Commerce, who has been a perennial spring of inspiration to me during my sojourn in the department. The study would not have seen the light of the day without his highly sympathetic disposition. My grateful thanks are due to the various organizations in Nepal especially the Agricultural Inputs Corporation and its management and employees and farmers in the sample village for their wholehearted support and cordial co-operation in the collection of data. I am also grateful to the Ministry of Agriculture, His Majesty's Government of Nepal and Secretary Shree Bed Bahadur Khadka for granting me study leave and recommending for FAO Fellowship. I am equally grateful to Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations for providing me this highly rewarding and refreshing opportunity by extending financial assistance for the present study.

It is with profound gratitude and sincere appreciations that I acknowledge the guidance and workable ideas I have received from my supervisor Dr. K.K. Mangla, Department of Commerce and Business Management, Panjab University, Chandigarh.
The study would not have been consummated without the support of his efforts.

My grateful thanks are due to Prof. B.N. Mehrotra, Chairman of the Department, other faculty members and staff of the department for their helpful attitude.

I am particularly beholden to my husband Shree Narottam Prasad Upadhyay who not only stimulated me to undertake the present assignment but also took every pain to see it accomplished. Despite his own engagements he spared time and went through the entire manuscript and came out with constructive suggestions.

Among other individuals who rendered all possible help in course of this study, mention may be made of Mr. Madan Regmi, Mrs. Lily Regmi, Mr. Rajottam Upadhyay, Shresto Pokhrel, Hari Pokhrel and Mr. Govinda Lal Pradhanang; I am thankful to all of them. I am also obliged to Mr. Mangal Sen Sood and Mrs. Bimla Sood for providing homely environment at Chandigarh and Mr. Ramesh for typing the work.

I shall be failing in my duty if I do not acknowledge the encouragement of my dear mother Gange, other family members and sacrifices of my son Sanjay which provided additional strength to do the work.

SHARADA LOHANI
Asstt. Economist,
Ministry of Agriculture,
Singha Darbar, Kathmandu, Nepal

Chandigarh