ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This thesis is the outcome of my researches made in the years 1963-1966. I am deeply beholden to the Madras University for the grant of a stipendiary studentship which enabled me to pursue my research studies in the Department of Politics and Public Administration of the University.

Much of the information in the following pages has been culled from backnumbers of newspapers, pamphlets, books and government records. It would have been almost impossible to collect the materials without direct access to the papers concerned, the libraries and the individuals who were close participants or observers of the events of those days. I take this opportunity of thanking all those who helped me in various ways and especially

1. The authorities of the Hindu, the Indian Express, the Andhra Patrika, the Kistna Patrika, and the Golkonda Patrika;
2. the Librarians of the Madras University Library, the Adyar Library, the Madras Maha Jana Sabha, the Andhra University Library (Waltair), the Ramamohun Library (Vijayawada) and the Saraswatha Niketanam (Vetapalam);
3. G.V.Subba Rao (Amalapuram), R.Venkstappa (Tangutur),
4. Srimunmurthy (Vijayawada), V.Suryanarayana (Guntur) and M.R. Gupta (Hyderabad);
4. the Director (Anthropology), Government Museum, Madras; and
5. the Governments of Andhra Pradesh and Madras and the Staff of the Madras Record Office and Central Record Office, Hyderabad.

I owe a deep debt of gratitude to Professor R. Bhaaskaran for his constant encouragement and enlightening guidance at different stages. I am highly thankful to Dr. C.A. Perumal, the then Reader-in-Charge and at present Professor and Head of the Department, who supervised my research since July 1965, for his valuable help and guidance in the final stages of the preparation of the thesis. Lastly I am much obliged to Sri G.V. Balachandran, Lecturer in the Department for his valuable suggestions in preparing the manuscript.

K.V. Narayana Rao