Acknowledgement

It gives me great pleasure to extend my sincere gratitude and appreciation towards the people who have been involved, directly and indirectly, to make the research work described in this thesis possible.

First and foremost among them is my Research Guide Dr. Dinabandhu Mahal, JJT University, whose constant support, humble approach, kind words and fatherly guidance has always been precious in preparing the thesis. I cherish the moments of valuable discussions that he shared during our interaction for the thesis work.

I would like to thank Dr. Reecha Singh, Head, Department of Commerce and Management, JJT University for being extremely kind, generous, understanding and supportive throughout the entire study. Her guidance and ready to help nature has encouraged me to complete the study.

I would like to thank Dr. K. Guruswamy for providing me with valuable inputs which has helped me to carry out the research study. I sincerely thank Mr. Dipak Jori, who took care of my office responsibilities with sincerity while I was away from work for data collection purpose.

I am thankful to the Principals of colleges from Pune, for permitting me to carry out the data collection study amongst their vibrant students. I would like to thank Dr. Ruchira Raina for her help and support to initiate the pilot study. I would like to thank Assistant Professor Umesh Chavan for his valuable help in coordinating and systematically arranging the survey of students from his college. I am extremely grateful to my brother Aqueel Shaikh for his help and support during the survey. Without their help, I would not have been able to complete the third chapter of the thesis.

I am grateful to Dr. Ramrup Sarkar for his help, support and guidance in the making of ‘testing of hypothesis’ chapter. Without his valuable inputs the fifth chapter of the thesis would not have been completed.
I am also thankful to my Seniors, Dr. A. J. Varma, Dr. B. L. V. Prasad, Dr. R. A. Joshi, Dr. S. K. Asha, Dr. C. P. Vinod, Dr. Samir Chikkali, Dr. C. G. Suresh, Dr. Ravi Singh, Dr. S. Dhanasekaran, A. Biju, Dr. K. Guruswamy for their valuable inputs on their views on popularization of science communication and importance of a science communicator. Without their help I would not have been able to complete the sixth chapter of the thesis.

I am extremely grateful to my Seniors Dr. Anil Kumar, Dr. A. A. Arbale, Dr. S. D. Prasad and my family for their constant encouragement, motivation, guidance that encouraged me to initiate pursuing research.

From the JJT University, I am thankful to Dr. S. K. Yadav, Director, Research, for his guidance and help during my course work. I am also thankful to Seniors especially, Dr. Sanjay Madan, Science Faculty, Dr. G. M. Kachhawa, Mr. Rajesh Kumar & Mr. Suresh Kumar of I.T. and Incharge Library Department, Dr. Vinod Timbrewala, Founder Director, for their constant support and permission for allowing me to work late night in the University Departments especially in the computer lab and library during the course work.

I am also thankful to the canteen and the support staff at JJT University, women’s hostel for their unduly cooperation and hospitality during my stay at the University, Rajasthan.

I would like to thank Dr. Sourav Pal, Director, CSIR-NCL, and Dr. S. Sivaram, former Director, CSIR-NCL, for allowing me to carry out research by taking CSIR-NCL as a model for studying the research publications and using the required facilities at the laboratory.

I am extremely grateful to the advanced technologies such as the Google, Google Scholar, CSIR-NCL website, website of R&D institutes, Internet, all the past and present science communicators, Scholars, Journal Publishers, magazines, local newspapers, online journals, freely available full text articles and others whose valuable work formed the backbone of my study.

Finally, I am extremely grateful for the inspiration and insight given to me by late Dr. L. K. Doraiswamy, former Director NCL, who has always been a constant inspiration to my study, career and personal life.
