ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is a pleasure for me to acknowledge here the contributions and help rendered by many scholars in the completion of this research work.

At the outset, I am highly grateful and indebted to Dr. H G Hanumappa, formerly Professor and Head, Agricultural Development and Rural Transformation Unit, Institute for Social and Economic Change, Bangalore, who, through his able guidance, comments and suggestions, has helped me in the completion of this research study. He has been a source of constant encouragement and help right from the selection of the research topic till its completion.

My thanks are due to Dr. M Govinda Rao, The Director, Institute for Social and Economic Change, for his encouragement and help.

I am thankful to Professors G Thimmaiah and V M Rao for their encouragement and suggestions to carry out research.

I also acknowledge my thanks to Professors Veerachamy, D T Nanjegowda, Rangaswamy, R G Desai and their colleagues of the Department of Economics, Bangalore University, Bangalore, who have helped me in a number of ways which facilitated the submission of my thesis to the Bangalore University.

I personally thank Dr. M J Bhende, who was my first supervisor. Due to technical problems I had to discontinue my research in the Department of Rural Development and shift to the Department of Economics. However, I had his academic support till the submission of the thesis.

I also acknowledge Professor R S Deshpande for his help and guidance in crucial matters in the preparation of my thesis. Although on many occasions I had to disturb him he was patient enough to help me out.

During the course of this research I have had the benefit of thoughtful comments and suggestions and support of many learned experts which helped me in moulding the thesis and enhanced my ability to continue the research. For this, I am grateful to Professor Hemlata Rao, Dr. Anand Inbhanathan, Dr. M Nageswar Rao, Dr. Devendrababu, Dr. S Erappa, Dr. K G Gayathri Devi and other faculty members in the Institute for Social and Economic Change.

I am thankful to Indian Council of Social Science Research and M S Ramaiah Charity Trust for granting me contingency grant which facilitated my field work.

I am thankful to officials of the Directorate of Sericulture and Department of Agriculture, Government of Andhra Pradesh for giving me access to use data/information on various aspects of sericulture industry. In particular, Mr. Prabhakar Rao, Joint Director, Department of Sericulture, and his staff in Hindupur took specific interest in my thesis work and I am thankful to them.

During my field visits, I received invaluable cooperation from the sample farmers, village elders, revenue officials and sericultural and agricultural scientists. I would like to express my gratitude to Mr. Hiremath and his family members for their kind hospitality.

In the preparation of my thesis, I have benefitted from various libraries. I wish to thank the staff of ISEC library for help and encouragement. The use of other libraries, like UAS, Indian Institute of Management, British Library, Bangalore, and the Library of the Bureau of Economics and Statistics, Hyderabad, enriched my knowledge in completing the thesis and I am thankful to the staff of these libraries.

My thanks are due to the administrative staff of the Department of Economics and the staff of the Ph.D section, Bangalore University.

My sincere thanks are due to Mr. V S Parthasarathy, who is an elder friend to me and has taken pains to edit my thesis.

I acknowledge Dr. S Rajendran, Reader, Department of Economics and Cooperation, Manasagangothri, Mysore University, Mysore, for his comments and suggestions on the earlier version of my thesis and Dr. K J Parameswarappa for making graphs and pie-charts.

My affectionate thanks are due to my friends, specially Mr. K V Govindaraju, Dr V Ramaswamy, Dr. Geetha Rani, Mr. Venkatesh, Dr. I Maruthi, Dr. M Mahadev, Mr. Lingaraju, Dr. Jayasheela and other friends whose help and encouragement has enabled me to complete the thesis.

I dont find words to express my gratitude to my parents, late Mr. D Venkatanarasappa, Mrs. Subbalakshamma and my brother Mr. V Krishnamurthy, as they have sacrificed their comforts to bring me up and facilitated me to get higher education.

Last but not the least I am highly indebted to my wife Mrs. G N Parimala, who not only encouraged me to complete the work but also kept me free from my household chores to enable me to devote full attention to my thesis work. I am also indebted to my kids D G Swathi and Master D G Ashwin, who left me relatively free although they required my full attention.

Bangalore

(D V GOPALAPPA)