The aim of this research project is to promote healthy peer relationship in school children through small group interaction procedures. The project involved nearly 500 subjects and the intervention programmes in small groups lasted for three months for each group. Naturally, a project of this magnitude is bound to suffer many limitations, especially when undertaken at individual level. Despite the limitations, the project was executed as contemplated, thanks to co-operation and help received from many sources.

This project was carried out under the able guidance of Dr. M.S. Thimmappa, Professor of Psychology, Bangalore University. His critical evaluation of the work and worthy suggestions were helpful for the successful completion of this study. I thank him for his constant encouragement and co-operation.

Dr. Vinoda N. Murthy, Professor and Head of the Department of Psychology, Bangalore University and a member of the Doctoral Committee has been a great source of inspiration. Her wise counsels have helped me at most critical junctures of this study. I am deeply indebted to her.
I thank Dr. Gopal Valecha of the Indian Institute of Management, Bangalore, for his help in designing the study; and Dr. K. Sunder Rajan of the University of Agricultural Sciences, Bangalore, for his guidance in statistical analysis. I am thankful to Dr. Indira Jaiprakash and Dr. Sudha Bhogle of the Department of Psychology, Bangalore University, who have helped me with their valuable suggestions. I also thank Ms. Vijayalakshmi, Roopa and Vandana for their assistance in the collection of data.

Ms. M. Kirkwood of Baldwin Girls High School, Bangalore, and Mr. M.S. Umapathy of Maharani's Arts College for Women, Bangalore, were a constant source of support and encouragement for me. I utilize this opportunity to express my appreciation and sincerely thank them for the resources provided to me.

Mr. Srikanth of Bangalore Institute of Computer Applications, Bangalore, has helped in the analysis of the data and Mr. H.K. Govinda Rao, the typist, has patiently borne my corrections and has been responsible for bringing the thesis to its present form. To them I say 'thank you'.

This investigation was made possible due to the co-operation of various official agencies and managements of various institutions. I am grateful to the Bangalore University and the University Grants Commission for providing financial assistance. I am also grateful to the Directorate of Public Instruction and Principals and staff members of Sri Aurobindo Memorial School, Kennedy Memorial School, Parents' Association School, Sudarshan Vidya Mandir, Bangalore Montessori School, St. Philomena's School, St. Michael Senior Primary School, and S.M. English School.

The children of the above mentioned schools were very enthusiastic in their participation and have actively cooperated in the various programmes of this study. And it is to these children I dedicated this work.

And to every individual who has helped me in carrying out this research, I owe a debt of gratitude.
