ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

First of all, I would like to express my deepest sense of gratitude to my Guide Prof. R. G. DESAI, K.K. Birla Fellow & Former Chairman, Dept. of Economics, Bangalore University, Bangalore, for his meticulous guidance, technical criticism and constant encouragement.

My thanks are due to Prof. N. Rangaswamy, Chairman & former Dean, Faculty of Arts, Director, Dept. of Student Welfare, for his encouragement and forwarding thesis.

I respectfully thank Prof. K. K. Sithamma, Prof. M. Ramanjaneyalu, Sri .D. .P. Anjaneyaswamy, and Dr. Shashi Kumar, for their valuable encouragement to pursue my research work in the department.

I am highly indebted to Dr. Vidyavati, for her help in analyzing the field data and to Miss Deepa D. S., for her untiring efforts in digitizing my thesis.
I remain grateful to the officials of Horticulture Department at Bangalore and Bijapur, for their cooperation in providing the secondary data and furnishing the unpublished official data for my research work. I am also grateful to the officials of APEDA who helped me in data collection.

My immense thanks are due to the sample farmers of Bijapur, Kolar and Bangalore, who have co-operated in responding to my interview in field while collecting the primary data.

The help rendered to me by the librarian of ISEC & Bangalore University, Bangalore, is acknowledged with gratitude.

My heartfelt thanks are due to my beloved mother Smt. G.T Vishala, who is a strength and source of inspiration in all my endeavours.

I cannot conclude this acknowledgement without mentioning the love, affection and sacrifice of my wife Smt. B.H. Jayashree and my son J. Bhuvan during the study period.

V. V. Jagadish