Many people have contributed in different ways to the writing of this thesis. I am very grateful to my guide, Professor V.G. Rao, for his involvement and his exacting standards. My thanks are also due to Professor L.S. Venkataramanan, Director, Institute for Social and Economic Change, Bangalore, for his constant encouragement at every stage of my work.

My parents and brother encouraged me to get started on this project. Raju, Balu and Jyothi of the Institute provided immense moral support and helped to edit a part of my work.

My greatest debt is to my husband, who helped me at every stage in countless ways, revived my flagging enthusiasm, and made many personal sacrifices to enable me to see this work through.

I am grateful to Mr. B. Raju, who patiently bore with the vagaries of the manuscript, and turned it into an accurate, clear typescript.

I also thank the Indian Council of Social Science Research for a research grant that made this project possible, and the Institute for Social and Economic Change, Bangalore, for making all the facilities available to me.