ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Hinduism and the Indo-English Novel, even if confined to a span of thirty years — 1947-77 — is a subject vast in scope and apparently nebulous in nature. I am deeply grateful to Dr. (Mrs.) Nirmal Mukherji for agreeing to supervise the thesis on the subject. But for her unfailing guidance it would have been difficult to complete the study in the field and it is a pleasure to acknowledge the debt I owe her.

I am particularly grateful to my mother but for whose unstinted help and ready willingness to take many tedious household chores off my hand, it would not have been possible for me to carry on the Research-work spread over a span of years together. My special thanks are also due to my younger sister, Aruna, who generously extended help to me all along and especially spent long hours assisting me in the editing, proofreading and typing part of the work.

When the work was in progress, I got help and encouragement from many friends and other members of the family. My sincere thanks to them all for their keen interest in my literary explorations and extending me their full cooperation in every way.

CHANDIGARH
JULY 1982.

(KAMLESH BHANDARI)