ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This thesis is a product of inspiration, encouragement, counsels, assistance and supervision from various sources. I feel pleasure in most gratefully acknowledging my indebtedness for the same.

I express my deep sense of gratitude to my supervisors, Ms. A.K. Anand, Librarian, Panjab University Library, Chandigarh (formerly: Chairperson, Department of Library Science, Panjab University, Chandigarh) and Dr. S.L. Sharma, Professor & Chairman, Department of Sociology, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for their judicious guidance, sustained encouragement, constructive criticism and kind supervision throughout the course of this study. Apart from their superb acumen and treasure of knowledge, their benevolent behaviour and affection has induced in me deep worship towards my erudite and revered supervisors. But for their benevolent treatment, this work would have remained simply a pious dream.

I take this opportunity to express my thanks to Dr. U.K. Tikku, Chairman, Department of Library Science, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for his continuous encouragement and providing me all sort of help for completion of the present work.

It sounds rather unconventional to make a mention of one’s family members on such occasions. I venture to be unconventional in this regard because I feel convinced that it is basically the inspiration of my wife Mrs. Kamal Chopra and my children who persuaded me for higher education and took keen interest in goading me to achieve success in the accomplishment of this work, at the cost of their comforts and pleasures. They stood by me with incredible patience despite my vicissitudes, throughout my research period and kept me away from the domestic problems.

I am also grateful to all the professional librarians working in Delhi, to whom I interviewed personally, in order to ascertain their socio-economic background and professional orientation.

My sincere thanks are also due to the staff of the Indian Library Association (ILA); Indian Association of Special libraries & Information Centres (IASLIC); Delhi Library Association (DLA); National Library of India and various other libraries for permitting me to consult their record and literature for the present work.

I shall be failing in my duty if I do not acknowledge my sincerest thanks to all the professional colleagues in India and abroad, with whom I had been discussing my topic of research and also all those authors whose works I have consulted and cited in this thesis.
