Chapter-I: Introduction

1.2 Three approaches in medical anthropology
1.3 The central tenets of Biomedicine
1.4 Terms in Medical Anthropology
1.5 Biomedicine and the social dimensions of sickness and healing
1.6 Medical Anthropology and Health care
1.7 Scenario of Health facilities Utilisation in India
1.8 Health of the Urban Poor - India’s Emerging Priority
1.9 Mysore and Slums
1.10 Review of Literature

Chapter - II: Research Methodology

2.1 Aims and Rationale of the study
2.2 Selection of Subjects
2.3 Scope of the study included the following:
2.4 Methods used in the study
2.5 Aims of the study
2.6 Explanatory models of illness and heal
2.7 Cultural models of health
2.8 Some Implications for health care and medical anthropology.
2.9 Tools for the study
2.10 Documentation Method
2.11 Recording and verification of data
2.12 Data entry and analysis
2.12 Chapterisation
2.13 Study Areas
2.14 Target group for the Research
2.15 Limitations of the study
2.16 Research Setting
2.17 Factors and Framework
Chapter III: Results and Findings

3.1 Socio-Economic and Demography Status of Slum Dwellers
3.2. Slums in Mysore city: a socio-demographic profile
3.3. Concept of health and Perception of Disease
3.4. Health Scenario of the slum Dwellers
3.5. Health problems and status among various categories and varied stages of life
3.6. Health Conditions among children
3.7. Health Status of Elderly among the Slum settlements
3.8. Home Based Women Workers in the Agarbatti Industry and Beedi rolling in Mysore city and their Health Status
3.9. Reasons and Causes of Ill health
3.10. Health and Hygiene practices in the slums and its effect on health
3.11. Environmental Disasters and Health
3.12. Housing and Health

Chapter IV: Utilisation of Health care Facilities among the slum dwellers

4.1 Mother and Child Health Care
4.2. Ante-Natal Care
4.3. Natal and Post-Natal Problems and Care
4.4. Health seeking regarding Abortion
4.5. Role of Females in Using Family planning Services
4.6. Awareness about HIV/AIDS and the Help Sought
4.7. Awareness about symptoms of STI
4.8. Hindrances of women to seek treatment
4.9. Utilization of health care among the Elders
4.10. Child Care utilization and status
4.11. Utilisation of health care services among the Elders or Aged people
4.12. Utilisation of Government Facilities
4.13. Needs of Slum Settlements in regard to Health services
4.14. Slum Community participation in Regard to health Improvement

4.15. Health Seeking preferences

Chapter V: Conclusion 207-217

Case Study 218-220

References 221-226

Appendices 227-243