ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am deeply indebted to the managements of Heavy Electricals (India), Limited, Bhopal and Indian Telephone Industries, Limited, Bangalore for permitting me to do research work and for giving me the necessary facilities. I express my deep sense of gratitude to hundreds of workers, a large number of trade union leaders and management personnel whom I interviewed and who gave me their full co-operation.

I am also thankful to the staff of the Libraries of the Panjab University, Chandigarh, the Ministry of Labour and Employment, Government of India, New Delhi, the Shri Ram Centre for Industrial Relations, New Delhi, the National Labour Institute, New Delhi and the Bureau of Public Enterprises, New Delhi, for extending to me all possible facilities.

I am also thankful to the officials of the Implementation and Evaluation Division, the Indian Institute of Labour Studies, the Labour Bureau, Ministry of Labour, and the Bureau of Public Enterprises, who have been of great help to me in the collection of secondary data for the present study.

Thanks are also due to Mr. Chander Mohan Behal, Programmer, Computer Centre, Panjab University, Chandigarh.

I am also thankful to Dr. Prayag Mehta and Dr. K. O. Aggarwal of the National Labour Institute, New Delhi, for their constructive suggestions. I am indebted to Dr. B. S. Khanna, formerly Head, Department of Public Administration, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for the encouragement which he provided to me during the course of this study.

I have no words to express my deep sense of gratitude to Dr. Satya Deva, Chairman, Department of Public Administration, Panjab University, Chandigarh, my supervisor and esteemed teacher for his assistance in this research work.

Chandigarh, May 1978.
